National Anti-Slavery Standard.

VOL. XVII. NO. 8. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1856. WHOLE NO. 840.

...tional Anti-Slavery Standard.
PUBLISHED WEEKLY, ON SATURDAY,
AT TWO DOLLARS PER ANNUM,
BY THE
...ERICAN ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETY,
At its Office, 138 Nassau St., New York,
AND AT THE OFFICE OF THE
...ENNSYLVANIA ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETY,
31 North Fifth St., Philadelphia.
...isements inserted at $1 per square for the first insertion, ...ents for every subsequent one. For advertisements less ...quare, 50 cents for each insertion.
NORRIS & JOHNSTON, PRINTERS.

Selections.

...RDER RUFFIAN INVASION OF KANSAS.

...RECORD OF UNPARALLELED VILLANY.

[...y from the Report of the Investigating Committee of the ...ates House of Representatives the following account of the ...fian invasion of Kansas of the 30th of March last, which ...the election of the Bogus Territorial Legislature, whose ...authority are still recognised by the U. S. Executive. ...d of fraud, perjury, ruffianism and crime, unparalleled, ...to say, in the history of any civilized country.]

...January and February, A. D. 1855, the Governor ...ed an enumeration to be taken of the inhabitants and ...fied voters in the Territory. ...the same day the census was completed, the Governor issued his Proclamation for an election, to be held on ...of March, A. D. 1855, for Members of the Legis... Assembly of the Territory. It prescribed the ...aries of districts, the places for polls, the names of ...s, the appointment of members, and recited the ...ications of voters. If it had been observed, a just ...air election would have reflected the will of the ...ple of the Territory. Before the election, false and ...mmatory rumours were busily circulated among the ...ple of Missouri. The number and character of the ...ration then passing into the Territory were grossly ...ggerated and misrepresented. Through the active ...ons of many of its leading citizens, aided by the ...t societies before referred to, the passions and preju... of the people of that State were greatly excited. ...ral residents there have testified to the character of ...reports circulated among and credited by the people. ...e efforts were successful. By an organized move... which extended from Andrew County in the north ...asper County in the south, and as far eastward as ...ne and Cole Counties, companies of men were ar... in regular parties and sent into every Council Dis... the Territory, and into every Representative Dis... but one. The numbers were so distributed as to con... the election in each district. They went to vote, and ...the avowed design to make Kansas a slave State. ...y were generally armed and equipped, carried with ...their own provisions and tents, and so marched into ...Territory. The details of the invasion, from the mass ...he testimony taken by your Committee, are so volumi... that we can here state but the leading facts elicited.

1st District—March 30, 1855.—Lawrence.

The company of persons who marched into this Dis... collected in Ray, Howard, Carroll, Boone, La ...ette, Randolph, Saline and Cass Counties, in the ...e of Missouri. Their expenses were paid—those who ...not come contributing provisions, wagons, &c. ...visions were deposited for those who were expected ...ome to Lawrence in the house of William Lykins, ...were distributed among the Missourians after they ...ed there. The evening before and the morning of ...day of election, about 1,000 men from the above ...nties arrived at Lawrence and camped in a ravine a ...t distance from town, near the place of voting. They ...e in wagons—of which there were over one hundred ...d on horseback, under the command of Col. Samuel ...ung, of Boone County, Missouri, and Claiborne F. ...kson, of Missouri. They were armed with guns, rifles, ...ls and bowie-knives, and had tents, music, and flags ...them. They brought with them two pieces of artil...y, loaded with musket-balls. On their way to Law...e, some of them met Mr. N. B. Blanton, who had ...appointed one of the Judges of Election by Gov. ...der, and after learning from him that he considered it ...duty to demand an oath from them as to their place ...residence, first attempted to bribe and then threatened ...with hanging, in order to induce him to dispense with ...t oath. In consequence of these threats, he did not ...pear at the polls the next morning to act as Judge.

The evening before the election, while in camp, the ...sourians were called together at the tent of Capt. ...iborne F. Jackson, and speeches were made to them ...Col. Young and others, calling for volunteers to go to ...r districts where there were not Missourians enough ...ntrol the election, and there were more at Lawrence ...n were needed there. Many volunteered to go, and ...morning of the election several companies, from 150 ...00 men each, went off to Tecumseh, Hickory Point, ...mington, and other places. On the morning of the ...ction, the Missourians came over to the place of voting ...m their camp, in bodies of one hundred at a time. Mr. ...nton not appearing, another Judge was appointed in ...place—Col. Young claiming that, as the people of the ...itory had two Judges, it was nothing more than right ...the Missourians should have the other one, to look ...their interests; and Robert A. Cummins was elected ...Blanton's stead, because he considered that every man ...a right to vote if he had been in the Territory but an .... The Missourians brought their tickets with them, ...not having enough, they had three hundred more ...ted in Lawrence on the evening before and the day ...ection. They had white ribbons in their button... to distinguish themselves from the settlers.

When the voting commenced, the question of the ...lity of the vote of a Mr. Page was raised. Before it ...decided, Col. Samuel Young stepped up to the win... where the votes were received, and said he would ...e the matter. The vote of Mr. Page was withdrawn, ...Col. Young offered to vote. He refused to take the ...prescribed by the Governor, but swore he was a ...ident of the Territory, upon which his vote was re...ved. He told Mr. Abbott, one of the Judges, when ...ed if he intended to make Kansas his future home, that ...was none of his business; that if he were a resident ...he should ask no more. After his vote was received, ...Young got up on the window-sill and announced to ...crowd that he had been permitted to vote, and they ...ld all come up and vote. He told the Judges that ...re was no use in swearing the others, as they would all ...ear as he had done. After the other Judges concluded ...receive Col. Young's vote, Mr. Abbott resigned as ...dge of Election, and Mr. Benjamin was elected in his ...ace.

The polls were so much crowded until late in the even...g that, for a time, when the men had voted, they were ...ged to get out by being hoisted up on the roof of the ...lding where the election was being held, and pass out ...er the house. Afterwards a passage way through the ...owd was made, by two lines of men being formed, ...rough which the voters could get up to the polls. Col. ...ung asked that the old men be allowed to go up first ...d vote, as they were tired with the travelling, and ...nted to get back to camp.

The Missourians sometimes came up to the polls in ...cession, two by two, and voted.

...uring the day the Missourians drove off the ground ...of the citizens, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Bond, and Mr. .... They threatened to shoot Mr. Bond, and a crowd ...ed after him, threatening him; and as he ran from ..., some shots were fired at him, as he jumped off the ...k of the river and made his escape. The citizens of ...town went over in a body, late in the afternoon, when ...lls had become comparatively clear, and voted.

...fore the voting had commenced, the Missourians said, ...e Judges appointed by the Governor did not receive ...r votes, they would choose other Judges. Some of ...m voted several times, changing their hats or coats ...coming up to the window again. They said they ...nded to vote first; and after they had got through, ...the others could vote. Some of them claimed a right ...vote under the organic act, from the fact that their ...presence in the Territory constituted them residents, ...ugh they were from Wisconsin, and had homes in ...ssouri. Others said they had a right to vote because ...Kansas belonged to Missouri, and people from the East ...no right to settle in the Territory and vote there. ...ey said they came to the Territory to elect a Legisla... to suit themselves, as the people of the Territory and ...ns from the East and North wanted to elect a Legis...e that would not suit them. They said they had a ...to make Kansas a slave State, because the people ...e North had sent persons out to make it a free State. ...e claimed that they had heard that the Emigrant Aid ...ciety had sent men out to be at the election, and they ...came to offset their votes; but the most of them made no ...h claim. Col. Young said he wanted the citizens to ...e in order to give the election some show of fairness. ...e Missourians said there would be no difficulty, if the ...zens did not interfere with their voting, but they were ...determined to vote—peaceably, if they could, but vote ...anyhow. They said each one of them was prepared for ...t rounds without loading, and would go the ninth ...und with the butcher-knife. Some of them said that ...voting in the Territory they would deprive themselves ...of the right to vote in Missouri for twelve months after...wards.

The Missourians began to leave the afternoon of the day of the election, though some did not go home until the next morning.

In many cases, when a wagon load had voted, they immediately started for home. On their way home, they said that if Gov. Reeder did not sanction the election, they would hang him.

The citizens of the town of Lawrence, as a general thing, were not armed on the day of election, though some had revolvers, but not exposed, as were the arms of the Missourians. They kept a guard about the town the night after the election, in consequence of the threats of the Missourians, in order to protect it.

The Pro-Slavery men of the District attended the nominating Conventions of the Free State men, and voted for and secured the nominations of the men they considered the most obnoxious to the Free State party, in order to cause dissension in that party.

Quite a number of settlers came into the District before the day of election, and after the census was taken. According to the census returns, there were in the District 369 legal voters. Of those whose names are on the census returns, 177 are to be found on the poll-books of the 30th of March, 1855. Messrs. Ladd, Babcock and Pratt testify to fifty-five names on the poll-books of persons they knew to have settled in the District after the census was taken and before the election. A number of persons came into the Territory in March, before the election, from the Northern and Eastern States, intending to settle, who were in Lawrence on the day of election. At that time many of them had selected no claims and had no fixed place of residence. Such were not entitled to vote. Many of them became dissatisfied with the country. Others were disappointed at its political condition, and in the price and demand for labour, and returned. Whether any such voted at the election is not clearly shown; but, from the proof, it is probable that, in the latter part of the day, after the great body of the Missourians had voted, some did go to the polls. The number was not over fifty. These voted the Free State ticket. The whole number of names appearing upon the poll-lists is 1,034. After full examination, we are satisfied that not over 232 of these were legal voters, and 802 were non-resident and illegal voters. This District is strongly in favour of making Kansas a Free State, and there is no doubt that the Free State candidates for the Legislature would have been elected by large majorities if none but the actual settlers had voted. At the preceding election in November, 1854, where none but legal votes were polled, General Whitfield, who received the full strength of the Pro-Slavery party, got but forty-six votes.

SECOND DISTRICT—BLOOMINGTON.

On the morning of election, the Judges appointed by the Governor appeared and opened the polls. Their names were Harrison Burson, Nathaniel Ramsay and Mr. Ellison. The Missourians began to come in early on the morning, some 500 or 600 of them, in wagons and carriages, and on horseback, under the lead of Samuel J. Jones, the Postmaster of Westport, Missouri, Claiborne F. Jackson and Mr. Steely, of Independence, Mo. They were armed with double-barrelled guns, rifles, bowie-knives and pistols, and had flags hoisted. They held a sort of informal election, off at one side, at first for Governor of Kansas, and shortly afterwards announced Thomas Johnson, of Shawnee Mission, elected Governor. The polls had been opened but a short time when Mr. Jones marched with the crowd up to the window and demanded that they should be allowed to vote without swearing as to their residence. After some noisy and threatening talk, Claiborne F. Jackson addressed the crowd, saying they had come there to vote, that they had a right to vote if they had been there but five minutes, and he was not willing to go home without voting; which was received with cheers. Jackson then called upon them to form into little bands of fifteen or twenty, which they did, and went to an ox-wagon filled with guns, which were distributed among them and proceeded to load some of them on the ground. In pursuance of Jackson's request, they tied white tape or ribbons in their button-holes, so as to distinguish them from the "Abolitionists." They again demanded that the Judges should resign, and upon their refusing to do so smashed in the window, sash and all, and presented their pistols and guns to them, threatening to shoot them. Some one on the outside cried out to them not to shoot as there were Pro-Slavery men in the room with the Judges. They then put a pry under the corner of the house, which was a log house, and lifted it up a few inches and let it fall again, but desisted upon being told there were Pro-Slavery men in the house. During this time the crowd repeatedly demanded to be allowed to vote without being sworn, and Mr. Ellison, one of the Judges, expressed himself willing, but the other two Judges refused; thereupon a body of men, headed by "Sheriff Jones," rushed into the Judges' room with cocked pistols and drawn bowie-knives in their hands, and approached Burson and Ramsay. Jones pulled out his watch and said he would give them five minutes to resign in, or die. When the five minutes had expired and the Judges did not resign, Jones said he would give them another minute and no more. Ellison told his associates that if they did not resign there would be one hundred shots fired in the room in less than fifteen minutes; and then snatching up the ballot-box ran out into the crowd, holding up the ballot-box and hurraing for Missouri. About that time Burson and Ramsay were called out by their friends, and not suffered to return. As Mr. Burson went out he put the ballot poll-books in his pocket, and took them with him; and as he was going out Jones snatched some papers away from him, and shortly afterward came out himself holding them up, crying, "Hurrah for Missouri." After he discovered they were not the poll-books, he took a party of men with him and started off to take the poll-books from Burson. Mr. Burson saw them coming, and he gave the books to Mr. Umberger and told him to start off in another direction, so as to mislead Jones and his party. Jones and his party caught Mr. Umberger, took the poll-books away from him, and Jones took him up behind on a horse, and carried him back a prisoner. After Jones and his party had taken Umberger back, they went to the house of Mr. Ramsay and took Judge John A. Wakefield prisoner, and carried him to the place of election, and made him get up on a wagon and make them a speech; after which they put a white ribbon in his button-hole and let him go. They then chose two new Judges, and proceeded with the election.

They also threatened to kill the judges if they did not receive their votes without swearing them, or else resign. They said no man should vote who would submit to be sworn—that they would kill any one who would offer to do so—"shoot him," "cut his guts out," &c. They said no man should vote this day unless he voted an open ticket, and was "all right on the goose," and that if they could not vote by fair means, they would by foul means. They said they had as much right to vote, if they had been in the Territory two minutes, as if they had been there two years, and they would vote. Some of the citizens who were about the window, but had not voted when the crowd of Missourians marched up there, upon attempting to vote, were driven back by the mob, or driven off. One of them, Mr. J. M. Macey, was asked if he would take the oath, and upon his replying that he would, if the judges required it, he was dragged through the crowd away from the polls, amid cries of "Kill the d—d nigger thief," "Cut his throat," "Tear his heart out," &c. After they got him to the outside of the crowd, they stood around him with cocked revolvers and drawn bowie-knives, one man putting a knife to his heart, so that it touched him, another holding a cocked pistol to his ear, while another struck at him with a club. The Missourians said they had a right to vote if they had been in the Territory but five minutes. Some said they had been hired to come there and vote, and get a dollar a day, and, by G—d, they would vote or die there.

They said the 30th day of March was an important day, as Kansas would be made a slave State on that day. They began to leave in the direction of Missouri in the afternoon, after they had voted, leaving some 30 or 40 around the house where the election was held, to guard the polls until after the election was over. The citizens of the Territory were not around, except those who took part in the mob, and a large portion of them did not vote; 341 votes were polled there that day, of which but some 30 were citizens. A protest against the election was made to the Governor. The returns of the election made to the Governor were lost by the Committee of Elections of the Legislature at Pawnee. The duplicate returns left in the ballot-box were taken by F. E. Laley, one of the Judges elected by the Missourians, and were either lost or destroyed in his house, so that your Committee have been unable to institute a comparison between the poll-lists and census returns of this District. The testimony, however, is uniform, that not even 30 of those who voted there that day were entitled to vote, leaving 311 illegal votes. We are satisfied from the testimony that, had the actual settlers alone voted, the Free State candidates would have been elected by a handsome majority.

THIRD DISTRICT—TECUMSEH.

On the 28th of March, persons from Clay, Jackson and Howard Counties, Mo., began to come into Tecumseh in wagons, carriages and on horseback, armed with guns, bowie-knives and revolvers; and with threats, and encamped close by the town, and continued encamping until the day of election. The night before the election 200 men were sent for from the camp of the Missourians at Lawrence. On the morning of the election, before the polls were opened, some 300 or 400 Missourians, and others, were collected in the yard about the house of Thomas Stinson, where the election was to be held, armed with bowie-knives, revolvers and clubs. They said they came to vote, and whip the damned Yankees, and would vote without being sworn. Some said they came to have a fight and wanted one. Col. Samuel H. Woodson, of Independence, Mo., was in the room of the Judges when they arrived, preparing poll-books and tally-lists, and remained there during their attempts to organize. The room of the Judges was also filled by many of the strangers. The Judges could not agree concerning the oath to be taken by themselves and the oath to be administered to the voters, Mr. Burges desiring to administer the oath prescribed by the Governor and the other two Judges opposing it. During this discussion between the Judges, which lasted some time, the crowd outside became excited and noisy, threatening and cursing Mr. Burgess, the Free-State Judge. Persons were sent at different times by the crowd outside into the room where the Judges were, with threatening messages, especially against Mr. Burgess, and, at last, ten minutes were given them to organize in, or leave; and, as the time passed, persons outside would call out the number of minutes left, with threats against Burgess, if he did not agree to organize. At the end of that time, the Judges, not being able to organize, left the room and the crowd proceeded to elect nine Judges and carry on the election. The Free-State men generally left the ground without voting, stating that there was no use in their voting there. The polls were so crowded during the first part of the day that the citizens could not get up to the window to vote. Threats were made against the Free State men. In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Gispatrick was attacked and driven off by the mob. A man by some called "Texas," made a speech to the crowd urging them to vote and to remain on the ground until the polls were closed, for fear the Abolitionists would come there in the afternoon and overpower them, and thus they would lose all their trouble.

For making an affidavit in a protest against this election, setting forth the facts, Mr. Burgess was indicted by the Grand Jury for perjury, which indictment was found more than fifteen months ago, and is still pending, Mr. Burgess never having been informed who his accuser was, or what was the testimony against him. A large majority, four to one, of the actual settlers of that district were Free State men, and there cannot be the least doubt that if none but the actual settlers of the district had voted at that election, the Free State candidate would have been elected. The number of legal votes in the district, according to the census returns, was 101. The total number of votes cast was 372, and of these but 32 are on the returns, and, from the testimony and records, we are satisfied that not over 40 legal votes were cast at the election. A body of armed Missourians came into the district previous to the election, and encamped there. Before the time arrived for opening the polls, the Missourians went to another than the town appointed for the election; and one of the judges appointed by the Governor, and two chosen by the Missourians proceeded to open the polls and carry on the election. The Missourians said none but Pro-Slavery men should vote, and threatened to shoot any Free State man who should come up to vote. Mr. Mockbee, one of the judges elected by the Missourians, had a store near the boundary fixed by the proclamation of the Governor, while he cultivated a farm in Missouri, where his family lived, and where his legal residence was then and is now. The Missourians also held a side election for Governor of the Territory, voting for Thomas Johnson, of Shawnee Mission. The Free State men, finding the polls under the control of non-residents, refused to, and did not, vote. They constituted a decided majority of the actual settlers. A petition signed by a majority of the residents of the district was sent to the Governor. The whole number of voters in this district, according to the census returns, was 47; the number of votes cast was 80, of whom but 15 were residents; the number of residents whose names are on the census rolls, who did not vote, was 32.

For some days prior to the election, companies of men were organized in Jackson, Cass and Clay Counties, Mo., for the purpose of coming to the Territory and voting in this Fifth District. The day previous to the election, some 400 or 500 Missourians armed with guns, pistols and knives, came into the Territory and camped, some at Bull Creek and others at Pottawatomie Creek. Their camps were about 16 miles apart. On the evening before the election, Judge Hamilton, of the Cass County Court, Mo., came from the Pottawatomie Creek camp to Bull Creek for 60 more Missourians, as they had not enough there to render the election certain, and about that number went down there with him. On the evening before the election, Dr. B. C. Westfall was elected to act as one of the Judges of Election in the Bull Creek precinct, in place of one of the Judges appointed by the Governor, who, it was said, would not be there the next day. Dr. Westfall was at that time a citizen of Jackson County, Mo. On the morning of the election, the polls for Bull Creek precinct were opened, and, without swearing the Judges, they proceeded to receive the votes of all who offered to vote. For the sake of appearance, would get some one to come to the window and offer to vote, and when asked to be sworn he would pretend to grow angry at the Judges and would go away, and his name would be put down as having offered to vote, but "rejected, refusing to be sworn." This arrangement was made previously and perfectly understood by the Judges. But few of the residents of the District were present at the election, and only 13 voted. The number of votes cast in the precinct was 393.

One Missourian voted for himself and then voted for his little son, but 10 or 11 years old. Col. Coffer, Henry Younger and Mr. Lykins, who were voted for and elected to the Legislature, were residents of Missouri at the time. Col. Coffer subsequently married in the Territory. After the polls were closed the returns were made, and a man, claiming to be a magistrate, certified on them that he had sworn the Judges of Election before opening the polls. In the Pottawatomie precinct the Missourians attended the election, and after threatening Mr. Chesnut, the only Judge present appointed by the Governor, to induce him to resign, they proceeded to elect two other Judges—one a Missourian and the other a resident of another precinct of that District. The polls were then opened, and all the Missourians were allowed to vote without being sworn.

After the polls were closed, and the returns made out, for the signatures of the Judges, Mr. Chesnut refused to sign them, as he did not consider them correct returns of legal voters.

Col. Coffer, a resident of Missouri, but elected to the Kansas Legislature from that District at that election, endeavoured with others to induce Mr. Chesnut by threats to sign the returns, which he refused to do, and left the house. On his way home he was fired at by some Missourians, though not injured. There were three illegal to one legal vote given there that day. At the Big Layer precinct, the Judges appointed by the Governor met at the time appointed, and proceeded to open the polls, after being duly sworn. After a few votes had been received, a party of Missourians came into the yard of the house where the election was held, and unloading a wagon filled with arms, stacked their guns in the yard, and came up to the window and demanded to be admitted to vote. Two of the Judges decided to receive their votes, whereupon the third Judge, Mr. J. M. Arthur, resigned, and another was chosen in his place. Col. Young, a citizen of Missouri, but a candidate for and elected to the Territorial Legislative Council, was present and voted in the precinct. He claimed that all Missourians who were present on the day of election were entitled to vote. But thirty or forty of the citizens of the precinct were present, and many of them did not vote. At the Little Sugar precinct, the election seemed to have been conducted fairly, and there a Free State majority was polled. From the testimony the whole District appears to have been largely Free State, and had none but actual settlers voted, the Free State candidates would have been elected by a large majority. From a careful examination of the testimony and the records, we find that from 200 to 225 legal votes were polled, out of 885, the total number given in the precincts of the Fifth District. Of the legal votes cast, the Free State candidates received 152.

SIXTH DISTRICT—FORT SCOTT.

A company of citizens from Missouri, mostly from Bates County, came into this District the day before the election, some camping and others putting up at the public-house. They numbered from 100 to 200 and came in wagons and on horseback, carrying their provisions and tents with them, and were generally armed with pistols. They declared their purpose to vote, and claimed the right to do so. They went to the polls generally in small bodies, with tickets in their hands, and many, if not all, voted. In some cases they declared that they had voted, and gave their reasons for so doing. Mr. Anderson, a Pro-Slavery candidate for the Legislature, endeavoured to dissuade the non-residents from voting, because he did not wish the election contested. This person, however, insisted upon voting, and upon his right to vote, and did so. No one was challenged or sworn, and all voted who desired to. Out of 350 votes cast, not over 100 were legal, and but 64 of those named in the census taken one month before by Mr. Barber, the candidate for Council, voted. Many of the Free State men did not vote, but your Committee is satisfied that, of the legal votes cast, the Pro-Slavery candidates received a majority. Mr. Anderson, one of these candidates, was an unmarried man, who came into the District from Missouri a few days before the election, and boarded at the public-house until the day after the election. He then took with him the poll-lists, and did not return to Fort Scott until the occasion of a barbecue the week before the election of October 1, 1855. He voted at that election, and after it left, and has not since been in the District. S. A. Williams, the other Pro-Slavery candidate, at the time of the election had a claim in the Territory, but his legal residence was not there until after the election.

SEVENTH DISTRICT.

From two to three hundred men from the State of Missouri came in wagons or on horseback to the election ground at Switzer's Creek, in the Seventh District, and encamped near the polls, on the day preceding the election. They were armed with pistols and other weapons, and declared their purpose to vote, in order to secure the election of Pro-Slavery members. They said they were disappointed in not finding more Yankees there, and that they had brought more men than were necessary to counterbalance their vote. A number of them wore badges of blue ribbon with a motto, and the company were under the direction of leaders. They declared their intention to conduct themselves peacefully, unless the residents of the Territory attempted to stop them from voting. Two of the Judges of Election appointed by Governor Reeder, refused to serve, whereupon two others were appointed in their stead by the crowd of Missourians who surrounded the polls. The newly-appointed Judges refused to take the oath prescribed by Gov. Reeder, but made one to suit themselves. Andrew Johnson requested each voter to swear if he had a claim in the Territory, and if he had voted in another District. The Judges did not take the oath prescribed, but were sworn to receive all legal votes. The Missourians voted without being sworn. They supported H. J. Stickler for Council, and M. W. McGee for Representative. They left the evening of the election. Some of them started on horseback for Lawrence, as they said they could be there before night, and all went the way they came. The census list shows 53 legal voters in the District—253 votes were cast; of these, 25 were residents; 17 of whom were in the District when the census was taken. Some of the residents present at the polls did not vote, declaring it useless. Candidates declined to run on the Free State ticket, because they were unwilling to run the risk of so unequal a contest, it being known that a great many were coming up from Missouri to vote. Nearly all the settlers were Free State men, and 23 of the 25 legal votes given were cast for the only Free State candidate running. Mobiller McGee, who was declared elected Representative, had a claim—a saw-mill and a house in the Territory—and he was there a part of the time. But his legal residence is now, and was then, near Westport, in Missouri, where he owns and conducts a valuable farm, and where his family resides.

EIGHTH DISTRICT.

This was attached to the Seventh District for a member of the Council and a Representative, and its vote was controlled by the illegal vote cast there. The census shows 39 votes in it—37 votes were cast, of whom a majority voted the Free State ticket.

NINTH DISTRICT.

Fort Riley and Pawnee are in this District. The latter place was selected by the Governor as the temporary capital, and he designed there to expend the sums appropriated by Congress in the construction of suitable houses for the Legislature. A good deal of building was then being done at the fort near by. For these reasons a number of mechanics, mostly from Pennsylvania, came into this District in March, 1855, to seek employment. Some of these voted at the election. The construction of the capitol was first postponed, then abandoned, and finally the site of the town was declared by the Secretary of War to be the military reservation of Fort Riley. Some of the inhabitants returned to the States, and some went to other parts of the Territory. Your Committee find that they came as settlers, intending to remain as such, and were entitled to vote.

TENTH DISTRICT.

In this District ten persons belonging to the Wyandott tribe of Indians voted. They were of that class who, under the law, were entitled to vote, but their residence was in Wyandott Village, at the mouth of the Kansas River, and they had no right to vote in this District. They voted the Pro-Slavery ticket. Eleven men recently from Pennsylvania voted the Free State ticket. From the testimony, they had not, at the time of the election, established their residence as to have entitled them to vote. In both these classes of cases the Judges examined the voters under oath and allowed them to vote, and in all respects the election seems to have been conducted fairly. The rejection of both would not have changed the result. This and the Eighth Election District formed one representative District, and was the only one to which the invasion from Missouri did not extend.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT.

The Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh and Twelfth Election Districts, being all separately settled, were attached together as a Council District, and the Eleventh and Twelfth as a Representative District. The Election District is 60 miles north from Pawnee, and 150 miles from Kansas City, in the north-west settlement in the Territory, and contained, when the census was taken, but 36 inhabitants, of whom 24 were voters. There was on the day of election no white settlement about Marysville, the place of voting, for 40 miles, except that Marshall and Bishop kept a store and ferry at the crossing of the Big Blue and the California road. Your Committee were unable to procure witnesses from this District. Persons who were present at the election were only summoned by an officer, and among them was F. J. Marshall, the member of the House from that District. On his return the officer was arrested and detained, and persons bearing the names of some of the witnesses summoned were stopped near Lecompton, and did not appear before the Committee. The returns show that, in defiance of the Governor's proclamation, the voting was viva voce, instead of by ballot. Three hundred and twenty-eight names appear upon the poll-books, as voting, and by comparing these names with those on the census rolls, we find that but seven of the latter voted. The person voted for as Representative, F. J. Marshall, was chief owner of the store at Marysville, and was there sometimes, but his family lived in Weston. John Donaldson, the candidate voted for for the Council, then lived in Jackson County, Mo.

On the day after the election, Mr. Marshall, with 25 or 30 men from Weston, Missouri, was on the way from Marysville to the State. Some of the party told a witness who had formerly resided at Weston, that they were up at Marysville and carried the day for Missouri, and that they had voted about 150 votes. Mr. Marshall paid the bill at that point for the party.

There does not appear to have been any emigration into that District in March, 1855, after the census was taken, and judging from the best test in the power of your Committee, there were but seven legal votes cast in the District, and 321 illegal.

TWELFTH DISTRICT.

The election in this District was conducted fairly. No complaint was made that illegal votes were cast.

THIRTEENTH DISTRICT.

Previous to the day of election several hundreds of Missourians from Platte, Clay, Boone, Clinton and Howard Counties, came into the District in wagons and on horseback, and camped there. They were armed with guns, revolvers and bowie-knives, and had badges of hemp in their button-holes and elsewhere about their persons. They claimed to have a right to vote, from the fact that they were there on the ground, and had, or intended to make, claims in the Territory, although their families were in Missouri.

The Judges appointed by the Governor opened the polls, and some persons offered to vote, and, when their votes were rejected, on the ground that they were not residents of the District, the crowd threatened to tear the house down if the Judges did not leave. The Judges then withdrew, taking the poll-books with them. The crowd then proceeded to select other persons to act as Judges, and the election went on. Those parties voting who were sworn were asked if they considered themselves residents of the District, and if they said they did they were allowed to vote. But few of the residents were present and voted, and the Free State men as a general thing did not vote. After the Missourians got through voting they returned home. A formal return was made by the Judges of Election, setting out the facts, but it was not verified. The number of legal voters in this District was 96, of whom a majority were Free State men. Of these — voted. The total number of votes cast was 269.

FOURTEENTH DISTRICT.

It was generally rumoured in this District, for some days before the election, that the Missourians were coming over to vote. Previous to the election, men from Missouri came into the District and electioneered for the Pro-Slavery candidates. Gen. David R. Atchison and a party controlled the nominations in one of the primary elections.

BURR OAK PRECINCT.

Several hundred Missourians from Buchanan, Platte and Andrew Counties, Mo., including a great many of the prominent citizens of St. Joseph, came into this precinct the day before and on the day of election, in wagons and on horse, and encamped there. Arrangements were made for them to cross the ferry at St. Joseph free of expense to themselves. They were armed with bowie-knives and pistols, guns and rifles. On the morning of the election, the Free State candidates resigned in a body, on account of the presence of the large number of armed Missourians, at which the crowd cheered and hurrahed. Gen. B. F. Stringfellow was present and was prominent in promoting the election of the Pro-Slavery ticket, as was also Hon. Willard P. Hall, and others of the most prominent citizens of St. Joseph, Mo. But one of the Judges of election, appointed by the Governor, served on that day, and the crowd chose two others to supply the vacancies.

The Missourians said they came there to vote for and secure the election of Major Wm. P. Richardson. Major Richardson, elected to the Council, had had a farm in Missouri, where his wife and daughter lived with his son-in-law, Willard P. Hall, he himself generally going home to Missouri every Saturday night. The farm was generally known as the Richardson Farm. He had a claim in the Territory, upon which was a saw-mill, and where he generally remained during the week.

Some of the Missourians gave as their reason for voting that they had heard that Eastern emigrants were to be at that election, though no Eastern emigrants were there. Others said they were going to vote for the purpose of making Kansas a slave State.

Some claimed that they had a right to vote under the provisions of the Kansas-Nebraska bill, from the fact that they were present on the ground on the day of election.

The Free State men generally did not vote, and those who did vote voted generally for John H. Whitehead, Pro-Slavery, for Council, against Major Wm. P. Richardson, and did not vote at all for members of the Lower House.

The parties were pretty nearly equally divided in the District, some being of opinion that the Free State party had a small majority, and others that the Pro-Slavery party had a small majority. After the election was over and the polls were closed, the Missourians returned home. During the day they had provisions and liquor served out free of expense to all.

DONIPHAN PRECINCT.

The evening before the election some 200 or more Missourians from Platte, Buchanan, Saline and Clay Counties, Missouri, came into this Precinct with tents, music, wagons and provisions, and armed with guns, rifles, pistols and bowie-knives, and encamped about two miles from the place of voting. They said they came to vote, to make Kansas a slave State, and intended to return to Missouri after they had voted.

On the morning of the election the Judges appointed by the Governor would not serve, and others were appointed by the crowd. The Missourians were allowed to vote without being sworn—some of them voting as many as eight or nine times; changing their hats and coats and giving in different names each time. After they had voted, they returned to Missouri. The Free State men generally did not vote, though constituting a majority in the Precinct. Upon counting the ballots in the box and the names on the poll lists, it was found that there were too many ballots, and one of the Judges of election took out ballots enough to make the two numbers correspond.

WOLF RIVER PRECINCT.

But few Missourians were present in this Precinct, though some of them threatened one of the judges because he refused to receive their votes; and when he resigned, another was chosen in his place who consented to receive their votes.

Protests were drawn up against the elections in the various precincts in the Fourteenth District, but, on account of threats that greater numbers of Missourians would be at a new election, should it be called, and of personal violence to those who should take part in the protest, it was not presented to the Governor. Major Richardson, the Pro-Slavery candidate for Council, threatened Dr. Cutler, the Free State candidate, that if he contested the election, he and his office would be put in the Missouri River.

The number of votes in the District by the census was 334—of these, 124 voted. The testimony shows that quite a number of persons whose legal residence was in the populous County of Buchanan, Mo., on the opposite side of the river, had claims in the Territory. Some ranged cattle, and others marked out their claim and built a cabin, and sold this incipient title where they could. They were not residents of the Territory in any just or legal sense. A number of settlers moved into the District in the month of March. Your Committee are satisfied, after a careful analysis of the records and testimony, that the number of legal votes cast did not exceed 200, out of 727.

FIFTEENTH DISTRICT.

The election in this District was held in the house of Mr. Hayes. On the day of the election a crowd of from 400 to 500 men collected around the polls, of which the great body were citizens of Missouri. One of the Judges of Election, in his testimony, states that the strangers commenced crowding around the polls, and then the residents left. Threats were made, before and during the election day, that there should be no Free State candidates, although there were nearly or quite as many Free State as Pro-Slavery men resident in the District. Most of the crowd were drinking and carousing, cursing the Abolitionists and threatening the only Free State Judge of Election. A majority of those who voted wore hemp in their button-holes, and their password was "All right on the hemp." Many of the Missourians were known and are named by the witnesses. Several speeches were made by them at the polls, and among those who spoke were Major Oliver, one of your Committee, Col. Burns and Lalan Williams, of Platte County. Major Oliver urged upon all present to use no harsh words, and expressed the hope that nothing would be said or done to harm the feelings of the most sensitive on the other side. He gave some grounds, based on the Missouri Compromise, in regard to the right of voting, and was understood to excuse the Missourians for voting. Your Committee are satisfied that he did not vote. Col. Burns recommended all to vote, and he hoped none would go home without voting. Some of the pro-slavery residents were much dissatisfied at the interference with their rights by the Missourians, and for that reason—because reflection convinced them that it would be better to have Kansas a free State—they "fell over the fence." The Judges requested the voters to take an oath that they were actual residents. They objected at first, some saying they had a claim, or "I am here." But the Free State Judge insisted upon the oath, and his associates, who at first were disposed to waive it, coincided with him, and the voters all took it, after some grumbling. One said he cut him some poles and laid them in the shape of a square, and that made him a claim; and another said that he had cut him a few sticks of wood, and that made him a claim. The Free State men did not vote, although they believed their numbers to be equal to the Pro-Slavery settlers, and some claimed that they had the majority. They were deterred by threats thrown out by the Missourians, before and on the day of election, from putting up candidates, and no candidates were run, for this reason—that there was a credited rumour previously that the Missourians would control the election. The Free State Judge was threatened with expulsion from the polls, and a young man thrust a pistol into the window through which the votes were received. The whole number of votes cast was 417; of the names on the poll-book, but 62 are in the census-rolls, and the testimony shows that a small portion, estimated by one witness at one-quarter of the legal voters, voted. Your Committee estimate the number of legal voters at 80. One of the judges referred to certified to the Governor that the election was fairly conducted. It was not contested, because no one would take the responsibility of doing it, as it was not considered safe, and that if another election was had, the residents would fare no better.

SIXTEENTH DISTRICT.

For some time previous to the election, meetings were held and arrangements made in Missouri to get up companies to come over to the Territory and vote, and the day before and on the day of election, large bodies of Missourians from Platte, Clay, Ray, Charlton, Carroll, Clinton and Saline Counties, Missouri, came into this district and camped there. They were armed with pistols and bowie-knives, and some with guns and rifles, and had badges of hemp in their button-holes and elsewhere about their persons.

On the morning of the election there were from 1,000 to 1,400 persons present on the ground. Previous to the election, Missourians endeavoured to persuade the two Free State Judges to resign by making threats of personal violence to them, one of whom resigned on the morning of election, and the crowd chose another to fill his place. But one of the Judges, the Free State Judge, would take the oath prescribed by the Governor; the other two deciding that they had no right to swear any one who offered to vote, but that all on the ground were entitled to vote. The only votes refused were some Delaware Indians, some 30 Wyandotte Indians being allowed to vote.

One of the Free State candidates withdrew in consequence of the presence of the Missourians, amid cheering and acclamations by the Missourians. During the day, the steamboat New Lucy came down from Western Missouri, with a large number of Missourians on board, who voted and then returned on the boat.

The Missourians gave as a reason for their coming over to vote, that the North had tried to force emigration into the Territory, and they wanted to counteract that movement. Some of the candidates, and many of the Missourians, took the ground that, under the Kansas-Nebraska Act, all who were on the ground on the day of election were entitled to vote, and others, that laying out a town, staking a lot, or driving down stakes, even on another man's claim, gave them a right to vote. And one of the members of the Council, R. R. Rees, declared in his testimony that he who should put a different construction upon the law must be either a knave or a fool.

The Free State men generally did not vote at that election; and no newly-arrived Eastern emigrants were there. The Free State Judge of election refused to sign the returns until the words "by lawful resident voters" were stricken out, which was done, and the returns made in that way. The election was contested, and a new election ordered by Governor Reeder for the 22d of May.

The testimony is divided as to the relative strength of parties in this District. The whole number of voters in the District, according to the census returns, was 385; and, according to a very carefully prepared list of voters, prepared for the Pro-Slavery candidates and other Pro-Slavery men a few days previous to the election, there were 305 voters in the District, including those who had claims but did not live on them. The whole number of votes cast was 964. Of these named in the census 106 voted. Your Committee, upon careful examination, are satisfied that there were not over 150 legal votes cast, leaving 814 illegal votes.

SEVENTEENTH DISTRICT.

The election in this District seems to have been fairly conducted, and not contested at all. In this District the Pro-Slavery party had the majority.

EIGHTEENTH DISTRICT.

Previous to the election, Gen. David R. Atchison, of Platte City, Mo., got up a company of Missourians, and, passing through Weston, Mo., went over into the Territory. He remained all night at the house of ———, and then exhibited his arms, of which he had an abundance. He proceeded to the Nemohaer (Eighteenth) District. On his way, he and his party attended a Nominating Convention in the Fourteenth District, and proposed and caused to be nominated a set of candidates in opposition to the wishes of the Pro-Slavery residents of the District. At that Convention he said that there were 1,100 men coming over from Platte County, and if that wasn't enough they could send 5,000 more—that they came to vote, and would vote or kill every G—d d—d Abolitionist in the Territory.

On the day of election, the Missourians under Atchison, who were encamped there, came up to the polls in the Eighteenth District, taking the oath that they were residents in the District. The Missourians were all armed with pistols or bowie-knives, and said there were 60 in their company. But 17 votes given on that day were given by residents of the District. The whole number of votes was 62.

R. L. Kirk, one of the candidates, came into the District from Missouri about a week before the election and boarded there. He left after the election, and was not at the time a legal resident of the District in which he was elected. No protest was sent to the Governor on account of threats made against any who should dare to contest the election. The following tables embody the result of the examination of your Committee in regard to this election.

[These tables we are compelled to omit. The general results are shown in what follows.]

Of the 2,905 voters named in the census rolls, 831 are found on the poll-books. Some of the settlers were prevented from attending the election by the distance of their homes from the polls, but the great majority were deterred by the open avowal that large bodies of armed Missourians would be at the polls to vote, and by the fact that they did so appear and control the election. The same causes deterred the Free State settlers from running candidates in several districts, and in others induced the candidates to withdraw.

The poll-books of the Second and Eighth Districts were lost, but the proof is quite clear that in the Second District there were 30, and in the Eighth District 38 legal votes, making a total of 898 legal voters of the Territory, whose names are on the census returns, and yet the proof, in the state in which we are obliged to present it, after excluding illegal votes, leaves the total vote of 1,310, showing a discrepancy of 412. The discrepancy is accounted for in two ways: First, the coming in of settlers before the March election, and after the census was taken, or settlers who were omitted in the census; or secondly, the disturbed state of the Territory while we were investigating the elections in some of the districts, thereby preventing us from getting testimony in relation to the names of legal voters at the time of election.

If the election had been confined to the actual settlers undeterred by the presence of non-residents, or the knowledge that they would be present in numbers sufficient to out vote them, the testimony indicates that the Council would have been composed of seven in favour of making Kansas a Free State, elected from the First, Second, Third, Fourth and Sixth Council Districts. The result in the Eighth and Tenth, electing three members, would have been doubtful, and the Fifth, Seventh and Ninth would have elected three Pro-Slavery members.

Under like circumstances the House of Representatives would have been composed of fourteen members in favour of making Kansas a Free State, elected from the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Representative Districts.

The result in the Twelfth and Fourteenth Representative Districts, electing five members, would have been doubtful, and the First, Sixth, Eleventh and Fifteenth Districts would have elected seven Pro-Slavery members.

By the election, as conducted, the Pro-Slavery candidates in every District but the Eighth Representative District received a majority of the votes; and several of them, in both the Council and House, did not "reside in," and were not "inhabitants of," the District for which they were elected, as required by the organic law.

ANOTHER VIRGINIAN OSTRACISED.

It would be difficult to name another country, civilized or savage, where there is less liberty of opinion, and where human rights are held by a more insecure tenure, than in that State which gave birth to George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, and a final resting-place to their remains. It is but a month or two since we published an account of the expulsion of a school-teacher from that State, for venturing, in a public debate, to defend the Ordinance of 1787, which Jefferson drew, and to which President Washington gave his official sanction and signature. Not long afterwards the venerable Bishop Meade, of the same State, was arraigned in the public journals for the encouraging words which he presumed to address to a coloured person to whom he was administering the rites of confirmation. He has not yet been compelled to leave the State, though the imposition of that penalty was recommended by a correspondent of a leading Virginia print. While the remembrance of these outrages upon freedom of thought and of speech is yet fresh in our recollection, intelligence of another, which does equal violence to the rights of one of her most meritorious citizens, and to all those cherished memories which hallow the name of Virginia to every American heart, has reached us. The facts of the case are briefly as follows:

Among the delegates to the Philadelphia Convention was Mr. John C. Underwood, an extensive planter residing in Clarke County, Virginia. During the sessions of the Convention Mr. Underwood made a brief speech, in the course of which he referred to and quoted the forebodings of Jefferson in regard to slavery, and begged the Convention to prevent, if possible, the curse which was blasting Virginia from spreading over the Virgin soil of Kansas. This speech, when it reached his home, gave great offence to those who are most interested in enlarging the market for Virginia-bred slaves, and a meeting was held a few days since at Piedmont, at which Mr. Underwood and his speech were not only denounced, but he himself was recommended to leave the State as soon as he could possibly make arrangements to do so. The resolutions are given at length below, together with the speech which he is expected thus bitterly to expiate.

Happily Mr. Underwood was not wholly unprepared for this demonstration. A day or two before his return to his home he received a letter from his wife, which we were permitted to read, and of which we were also permitted to take a copy for publication, if anything should happen to make such a publication appropriate. Such an exigency seems now to have occurred, and we accordingly give the letter, suppressing some names for obvious reasons. It runs as follows:

"June 23d, 1856.

"My Dear John C.: A friend communicated to me yesterday that there existed the greatest excitement and indignation against you for representing the State of Virginia in the Philadelphia Convention, and making, as reported in The Herald, an anti-slavery speech. As far as we have learned, the excitement is at Markham Station, Piedmont and Paris. ——— told our friend, they were watching at Piedmont on Saturday for your arrival, and he had no doubt if you had come that day, so great was the fury, you would have met with personal violence. This friend said to me, 'If I could have been there the man or men who offered Mr. Underwood personal violence would have felt a few of my heaviest blows.' Mr. ——— and Mr. ——— are the leaders at Piedmont; who at Paris, I do not know. At Markham Station the leaders say they go for giving you notice, and a reasonable time to wind up your business and leave the State

I send this morning to Alexandria to ma that place, and telegraph to you to-mor till you receive it. I know not what to afraid the excitement will meet you if you come. You know I am a Democrat, and I could not have Jackson blood in my veins without resisting till the last drop is shed in defence of life and liberty; but I do not believe in courting mob law or martyrdom. I feel greatly troubled at this state of things, and fear if your speech can be obtained it will exasperate the people here greatly. I hope you will be prudent; remain at home, and work. Write immediately, and tell me what to do on the farm, and I will try to have your wishes carried out as nearly as I can.

"With sorrow and much love, I remain, as ever,

"Your devoted wife,

"M. G. UNDERWOOD."

As an evidence of the sad degeneracy of Virginia, it deserves to be known in this connection that the author of the foregoing, who rose to share the persecution of her husband, for opinion's sake, carries in her veins some of the best blood of Virginia. There is one district in the State which was represented in Congress for more than thirty years by members of the family; by Col. George Jackson, her grandfather; by Edward B. Jackson, her father; and by John Jackson, her uncle, whose first wife was a sister of Mrs. Madison, and whose second wife and widow, now residing in Virginia, was a Miss Daingerfield, of Fredericksburg, formerly Postmaster-General, and also Governor of the State of Ohio.

Mr. Underwood himself was born in Herkimer County, in this State—as good a political pedigree as any State can furnish, which fully explains the bold and manly tone of the defence of freedom which led him to peril his domestic peace and his property rather than stifle his convictions at a time when, to be silent, is to advocate the cause of slavery and intolerance.

In extenuation of the barbarous tone of feeling so vividly depicted in Mrs. Underwood's letter, it should be stated that Clarke County, in which she resides, contains more slaves than any other County in the State, their number a little exceeding the number of whites at the last census. It is also worthy of being recorded, in this connection, that an agent of the American Bible Society, on a recent tour through the County, found that among two hundred white families which he visited in the course of a single month, more than half were without a Bible. Of therefore, by the process of legislate these outrages upon Mr. Underwood and his family have any claim to forgiveness for their unmanly and barbarous intolerance, it must be that which was asserted in behalf of the mob gathered some eighteen centuries ago on the heights of Calvary: "They know not what they do."

From The Virginia sentinel, June 27.

At a large and respectable meeting held at Piedmont Station, on the 18th inst., for the purpose of expressing their sentiments in relation to the course pursued by John Underwood, of Clarke County, and George Hye, of Shenandoah, at the Black Republican Convention held at Philadelphia, on the 17th inst., Mr. Underwood and Robert Bringleton, Esq., was called to the chair, and Edwin T. Ashby appointed Secretary.

The Chair appointed the following gentlemen to draft a preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

John Thos. Smith, Frank L. Fred, Fleet G. Rnst, Turner Ashby and John Scott.

Whereas, having learned through the public prints that John C. Underwood, of Clarke County, and George Hye, of Shenandoah, were conspicuous in the Black Republican Convention, recently held in Philadelphia, and by their actions and speeches did use impressions favorable to the views that portion of Virginia in which they reside—

Resolved, That as Virginians we do not recognise the principles of the platform as set forth upon that occasion, but believe them to be unjust and incendiary in their tendency, and calculated to sever the Union of these States, if carried out.

Resolved, That said Underwood and Rye, in constituting themselves a delegation to represent Virginia, acted in such a manner as to bring the reproach upon the State of Virginia that opinions were gaining a foothold in our State, which we pronounce a libel upon our institutions and an insult to us as citizens.

Resolved, That while we deplore the existing sectional parties, and recognise none but those who adhere to the Constitution and the Union as it is, we recommend the call for a conference with the constitutional rights, and hold up to the contempt of all law-abiding citizens the vile incendiaries who have dared to misrepresent us in the Convention referred to.

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to wait upon Mr. Underwood, to inform him of the just feelings of indignation created by his course in the Convention referred to, and to confer with his former (rejected) course in regard to the institution of slavery, and that they deem it just and advisable that he should leave the State as speedily as practicable, if in his power so to do.

Resolved, That the Alexandria Gazette, Alexandria Sentinel, Virginia papers generally, the National Intelligencer, and Baltimore Sun, are requested to insert the above as an act of justice to the citizens of our State.

Edwin S. Ashby, Sec'y. Robt. Singleton, Ch'n.

The following is a correct report of Mr. Underwood's remarks in the Philadelphia Convention, for which he is to be banished from the State:

MR. UNDERWOOD'S SPEECH.

"Gentlemen: I have but a few words to say to you, and I shall be compelled to speak them in sadness. Why is it that Virginia is not represented here to-day as she was in 1776? Why has the sceptre departed from the Old Dominion? It is as Thomas Jefferson once declared, because God is just, and his justice will not slumber forever (applause).

"Sir, it is because slavery has blighted what was naturally one of the fairest and loveliest portions of this country. It is, sir, because of our political masons, instead of building the bulwarks of freedom, have been erecting fortifications for slavery, and cementing the walls with the blood of crushed humanity (great applause). It is because our hunters, instead of pursuing the panting fugitive, would have been pursuing those Christian women for the performance of acts which might almost invite an archangel to come down from the region of the blest (cheers). Hunting them down for teaching the poor children of oppression and degraded humanity the first rudiments of God (shame). Hunting them down by means of those tyrannical laws which were made not to govern, but to crush out every sentiment of freedom, of virtue and of humanity. Virginia is not here to-day, because her wise statesmen, by their unwise legislation, have made the whole State land with the sweat and tears of unpaid labour (applause).

"And now I ask you, my friends, if you are willing that this blighting curse of slavery shall be extended all over the fair plains of the West? Are you willing that the chariot wheels of the slave-driver shall ride all the way to the Rocky Mountains? (No, no.) Will you aid in forging more manacles and letters for the arms and ancles of Christian men and women, brothers and sisters, husbands and wives; to be separated from one another, lashed and driven to the auction block, to the cruel sale to the cotton fields and dreary sugar plantations of the far South, to drag out their lives in hopeless, unrequited toil, and then to end their existence in an agony of woe unutterable (continued applause).

"Such is the work which Virginia is doing to-day. Shall the same infamous work curse the future States to spring up in the West, which were destined to be the homes of freemen? (No, no.) Shall these homes, dedicated to you and your children, and your children's children forever, become the habitations of freedom and happiness, or the habitations of cruel oppression and misery? (Cheers.)

"Gentlemen, I will not detain you longer. I appeal to you to let the fate of Virginia be a warning. Let us all remember the admonitions of a Jefferson. Let us remember that the curse of Heaven is and ever must be upon human oppression" (long continued cheering).

From The Cincinnati Gazette of June 26.

More Border Ruffianism.—A Methodist Minister Tarred and Feathered.—The Buffin Democracy of Missouri, like the Inquirer, believe their interests require that the pulpit should be silenced, the only difference being that our neighbour does not propose to adopt any more harsh measures than denunciation, and a stop page of supplies, while the Democracy of Missouri adopt the more summary and severe mode of tarring and feathering. It appears there is in Rochester, Andrew County, Mo., a Northern Methodist Church, and the clergyman ignorant of the action of the General Conference, recently held at Indianapolis, on the idea that this Church declares that its members cannot hold slaves, and thereupon declared the Northern Methodist Church "a nuisance," upon the same principle, we suppose, that Judge Lecompte's jury declared Beecher's Church a hotel a nuisance.

It was then declared to be the will of the community that the preacher in charge of this Northern Methodist Church should be silenced. He was accordingly asked to desist from preaching, but he would not comply, and the St. Joseph Gazette informs us that, "as the penalty of his temerity, he was tarred and feathered." In the difficulty which occurred, another man named Holland, an "Abolitionist," was killed. A series of resolutions were adopted, declaring every Northern Methodist and anti-slavery man in the County should be notified by the Vigilance Committee to pack up and leave, "and in the event of their refusal, the Committee to make report of the same to this meeting, at which time this meeting will take such steps as may be most expedient for their immediate expulsion from our midst."

The first resolution in the series adopted by this Anti-Northern Methodist Church meeting, reads as follows:

Resolved, That we believe in the Constitution of the United States, the Union of the States, the Democratic platform, and every feature thereof, and that we hold in abhorrence any political act in violation of said platform, wherever found, that will act in violation of said platform.

The Constitution for which these people profess so much attachment, says: "Congress shall make no laws respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press."

The consistency of the "regulators" of Missouri is worthy of the Border Ruffian family.

The Richmond Whig threatens Judge McLean. His letter to the Veterans Judge Hornblower and Underwood, recalled, in the most unmeasured terms and he is told that he will be "remembered" by Democratic Presidents for the high office which he has disgraced." If Buchanan should succeed, the attempt will be made to impeach Judge McLean a second time.

LATE OUTRAGES ON THE MISSOURI.

Special Correspondence of The N. Y. Tribune.

St. Louis, Wednesday, July 2, 1856.

I write, thinking it important that you should have as direct intelligence as possible in regard to the recent outrages on the Missouri River.

A party of Kansas emigrants left Worcester, Mass., on June 17, under the charge of Warren, Mass., on June 17, and under under Martin Stowell, of Worcester, on June 25. On June 27 the newspapers contained the telegraphic news that a party had been disarmed at Lexington, and on the same day I left Worcester in consequence for Chicago and St. Louis.

It appeared next day that the disarmed party was not Cutter's party, but a Chicago company. As, however, we knew that Cutter was just behind, and feared lest the hint he had given had got into difficulty also. We had directed him to go through Iowa; but, by the advice of our friends in Chicago, he had changed his route.

At Chicago I received telegraphic news that Cutter also was stopped at Waverly, near Lexington, which is the latest intelligence I have concerning him. I am here waiting for more.

At Alton I saw the leaders of the returned Chicago company, on their way west by another route, and took from them their Chicago Democratic account of their adventure, which I give you, because most of the published descriptions are more or less incorrect, or wanting important features.

Sixty-eight men, two women and three children, mostly from Worcester, left this city, in the "Star of the West," Capt. Dix, June 19. They were a peaceful organization, though, as is usual with pioneers, they carried their arms. Their chief officers were not military men, and they were likely to become actual settlers. Nothing suspicious occurred to them at Chicago City, where Missourians began to come on board in small parties, amounting gradually to some 50. At several points men left, with an appearance of concerted action. They reached Lexington at 8 P. M., and found a crowd on the wharf. The boat was o'clock, and hailed by the Captain, with two hawsers and a chain cable, a thing almost unheard of on the river, and proving that the Captain was, from the beginning, in league with the Missourians. This everybody whom I have seen here admits.

A committee of seven or eight came on board and requested to see the officers of the company, and told them they must have their arms. There was no resistance. Of the whole company from a house arsenal (as some accounts say); it was simply the law of the strongest. The Chicago men appear to me to have behaved well, and to have unwillingly acquiesced in the decision of their officers. They object to the insulting statements of personal fears, and recognise none but those who adhere to the Constitution and the Union as it is; to the Democratic platform of reference will be constitutional rights, and hold up to the contempt of all law-abiding citizens the vile incendiaries who have dared to misrepresent us in the Convention referred to.

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to wait upon Mr. Underwood, to inform him of the just feelings of indignation created by his course in the Convention referred to, and to confer with his former (rejected) course in regard to the institution of slavery, and that they deem it just and advisable that he should leave the State as speedily as practicable, if in his power so to do.

Resolved, That the Alexandria Gazette, Alexandria Sentinel, Virginia papers generally, the National Intelligencer, and Baltimore Sun, are requested to insert the above as an act of justice to the citizens of our State.

Edwin S. Ashby, Sec'y. Robt. Singleton, Ch'n.

The following is a correct report of Mr. Underwood's remarks in the Philadelphia Convention, for which he is to be banished from the State:

MR. UNDERWOOD'S SPEECH.

"Gentlemen: I have but a few words to say to you, and I shall be compelled to speak them in sadness. Why is it that Virginia is not represented here to-day as she was in 1776? Why has the sceptre departed from the Old Dominion? It is as Thomas Jefferson once declared, because God is just, and his justice will not slumber forever (applause).

"Sir, it is because slavery has blighted what was naturally one of the fairest and loveliest portions of this country. It is, sir, because of our political masons, instead of building the bulwarks of freedom, have been erecting fortifications for slavery, and cementing the walls with the blood of crushed humanity (great applause). It is because our hunters, instead of pursuing the panting fugitive, would have been pursuing those Christian women for the performance of acts which might almost invite an archangel to come down from the region of the blest (cheers). Hunting them down for teaching the poor children of oppression and degraded humanity the first rudiments of God (shame). Hunting them down by means of those tyrannical laws which were made not to govern, but to crush out every sentiment of freedom, of virtue and of humanity. Virginia is not here to-day, because her wise statesmen, by their unwise legislation, have made the whole State land with the sweat and tears of unpaid labour (applause).

"And now I ask you, my friends, if you are willing that this blighting curse of slavery shall be extended all over the fair plains of the West? Are you willing that the chariot wheels of the slave-driver shall ride all the way to the Rocky Mountains? (No, no.) Will you aid in forging more manacles and letters for the arms and ancles of Christian men and women, brothers and sisters, husbands and wives; to be separated from one another, lashed and driven to the auction block, to the cruel sale to the cotton fields and dreary sugar plantations of the far South, to drag out their lives in hopeless, unrequited toil, and then to end their existence in an agony of woe unutterable (continued applause).

"Such is the work which Virginia is doing to-day. Shall the same infamous work curse the future States to spring up in the West, which were destined to be the homes of freemen? (No, no.) Shall these homes, dedicated to you and your children, and your children's children forever, become the habitations of freedom and happiness, or the habitations of cruel oppression and misery? (Cheers.)

"Gentlemen, I will not detain you longer. I appeal to you to let the fate of Virginia be a warning. Let us all remember the admonitions of a Jefferson. Let us remember that the curse of Heaven is and ever must be upon human oppression" (long continued cheering).

From The Cincinnati Gazette of June 26.

More Border Ruffianism.—A Methodist Minister Tarred and Feathered.—The Buffin Democracy of Missouri, like the Inquirer, believe their interests require that the pulpit should be silenced, the only difference being that our neighbour does not propose to adopt any more harsh measures than denunciation, and a stop page of supplies, while the Democracy of Missouri adopt the more summary and severe mode of tarring and feathering. It appears there is in Rochester, Andrew County, Mo., a Northern Methodist Church, and the clergyman ignorant of the action of the General Conference, recently held at Indianapolis, on the idea that this Church declares that its members cannot hold slaves, and thereupon declared the Northern Methodist Church "a nuisance," upon the same principle, we suppose, that Judge Lecompte's jury declared Beecher's Church a hotel a nuisance.

It was then declared to be the will of the community that the preacher in charge of this Northern Methodist Church should be silenced. He was accordingly asked to desist from preaching, but he would not comply, and the St. Joseph Gazette informs us that, "as the penalty of his temerity, he was tarred and feathered." In the difficulty which occurred, another man named Holland, an "Abolitionist," was killed. A series of resolutions were adopted, declaring every Northern Methodist and anti-slavery man in the County should be notified by the Vigilance Committee to pack up and leave, "and in the event of their refusal, the Committee to make report of the same to this meeting, at which time this meeting will take such steps as may be most expedient for their immediate expulsion from our midst."

The first resolution in the series adopted by this Anti-Northern Methodist Church meeting, reads as follows:

Resolved, That we believe in the Constitution of the United States, the Union of the States, the Democratic platform, and every feature thereof, and that we hold in abhorrence any political act in violation of said platform, wherever found, that will act in violation of said platform.

The Constitution for which these people profess so much attachment, says: "Congress shall make no laws respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press."

The consistency of the "regulators" of Missouri is worthy of the Border Ruffian family.

The Richmond Whig threatens Judge McLean. His letter to the Veterans Judge Hornblower and Underwood, recalled, in the most unmeasured terms and he is told that he will be "remembered" by Democratic Presidents for the high office which he has disgraced." If Buchanan should succeed, the attempt will be made to impeach Judge McLean a second time.

of the injury to this ... by this condition of things, that I believe ... were battered down to-morrow, St. Louis would hear it with joy. I should judge that nine out of ten of the active business men here sympathise with the position of The Democrat, and indeed, how can they help it, as business men? As a private sufferer from the effects of the Sharpe Rifle mania, I am ... tonst was "Peace to Kansas"; which elicited, I am told, much response and feeling against the "Border Ruffians." This will not be likely to lead to any positive outbreaks; but I find an atmosphere of sympathy among some persons here, which surprises me.

There was a report here yesterday that Gen. P. F. Smith was to arrive to-day en route for Kansas with 1,000 United States troops, but there seems to be no foundation for it.

Gov. Shannon is here, on his way to Washington. Have it on what authority that he had written a letter of resignation and was persuaded by Col. Sumner, at the last moment, not to send it, until his successor was fixed upon, so as to leave no interregnum. It is with this view, to be suspected, that the present Governor is on his way to Washington; and I think you will find that one or two of Atchison's best agents will be at the seat of Government as soon as his excellency will, so that Kansas and Sumner will have nothing to hope from his resignation.

While I was at Chicago Shannon caused a despatch to be forwarded to the Kansas Committee there, saying he explain to them his position and intentions, if he could have a personal interview. They declined the honour, in a manner more decided than reverential. I think they were right. What is the use of negotiating with one who is a nonentity every morning and a beast at five every afternoon? Yours truly, T. W. Higginson.

National Anti-Slavery Standard.

WITHOUT CONCEALMENT.—WITHOUT COMPROMISE.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1856.

ANTI-SLAVERY CELEBRATION OF THE FOURTH OF JULY, 1856.

In accordance with the invitation of the Managers of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society, and notwithstanding the unpropitious state of the weather—rain falling heavily during the time of assembling—a large number of persons came together at Framingham, on the morning of the anniversary of National Independence, to spend the day more in accordance with those sentiments of humiliation which the American people ought to cherish in view of the utter subjection of their National Government, in all its departments, and of the entire Union, to the ignominious service of the Slave Power which now rules the land.

As the falling rain and wet ground made it impossible to occupy the grove, at the time of the arrival of the cars from Boston, Worcester, Milford and Marlboro', the company proceeded to the Town Hall at Framingham Centre, being conveyed thither in the cars of the Boston and Worcester Railroad, which were kindly furnished for the purpose by the Superintendent of the Road.

At 10 1-2 o'clock, the meeting was called to order by Francis Jackson, who, on behalf of the Committee of Arrangements, proposed the following organization:

President—Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

Vice-Presidents—Francis Jackson, Boston; E. L. Capron, Worcester; Josiah Hayward, Salem; Charles F. Hovey, Framingham.

Secretaries—Samuel May, Jr., Leicester; James M. W. Yerrinton, Boston.

Finance Committee—Joseph A. Howland, Sarah H. Wall, Lewis Ford, Timothy B. Southwick, Charles Brigham.

The meeting accepted, without a dissenting voice, the above as their officers.

Mr. Garrison said—My friends, we are disappointed to-day by the lowering clouds above us, and the rain that falls around; but we are not peculiar in that respect, for thousands, doubtless, in every part of the State, are subject to like disappointment. It seems to me peculiarly appropriate that while our land is fast verging to civil war, and blood and rapine are riding rough-shod over our free territory, and all the bonds of society seem to be dissolving—I say it seems appropriate that on such a time and on an occasion like this, the sun should refuse to show us his countenance, and all nature should be in tears. This is no time for revelry or festivity, but rather, it would be much out of place now as at a funeral.

The audience then joined in singing the favourite anti-slavery song—

"Come all who claim the freeman's name."

Mr. Garrison addressed the assembly, as follows:

SPEECH OF WM. LLOYD GARRISON.

Mr. President—The land is rocking with an unparalleled excitement—The conservative and prudent admonish us to measure our words, and to speak with calmness and deliberation. To be sure of my language, and to run no hazard of rashness, I will not trust myself to the inspiration of the hour, but utter only what in the quietude of my chamber I have prepared for this occasion.

Eighty years have passed away since the cry of "Independence!" was heard throughout all the Colonies, and the gauntlet of defiance was thrown down to the colossus power of the mother country. That long and sanguinary struggle for freedom, ending in the triumph of "rebellion" and loyalty, of "treason" over submission, and the formation of a government based upon compromise and cemented with blood. In all that pertains to material wealth, to augmentation of physical strength, to extension of territory, to increase of population, to internal development, how vast is the contrast between that period and our own! Thirteen multiplied to thirty-one States—three millions to twenty-seven millions of people—a limited boundary, to an extent of territory now reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Instead of our colonial being the decline of public virtue, the demoralization of the country, the growth of the Slave Power during the same term! Nine new slave States have been added to the Union—half a million of slaves increased to four millions—and all constitutional liberty lies trodden in the dust! We are betrayed and ruined people, over us is a despotism incomparably more awful and exacting than our fathers ever knew; all the old landmarks are removed out of the way; the waves of licentious usurpation and reckless violence break over all the land; and "the end is not yet."

What is left to us as free, rational, accountable beings? In one-half of the country, we may not deny the right of property in man, nor seek the duty of emancipation, nor proclaim an anti-slavery tract, nor arraign the slave code for its unequalled cruelty, nor attempt to enlighten the benighted bondman, nor give the Bible to the destitute, nor interpret it on the side of impartial liberty, nor expose the most horrid barbarities, nor denounce the most accursed traffic in human flesh, nor protest against the abrogation of the sacred institution of marriage, nor remonstrate against plundering the labourer of his wages, except at the price of life, or the uncertainty of imprisonment. With more impunity may we arraign Popery in Rome, or autocracy in St. Petersburg, face to face.

I see before me a multitude of the friends of freedom, who are entitled to constitutional protection, in the full exercise of freedom of speech and of conscience, wherever they stand on the American soil. On this Anniversary of our National Independence, let us, in imagination, take up our line of march westward, and enter into the Territory of Kansas, proclaiming the "self-evident truths" of the Declaration of Independence. What awaits us? Outrage, imprisonment, assassination, death! Here is a portion of the bloody code enacted for that Territory by the Missouri bandits:

Sec. 4. If any person shall AID or ASSIST in enticing, decoying, or persuading, or carrying away, or sending out of this Territory any Slave belonging to another, with intent to procure or effect THE FREEDOM OF SUCH SLAVE, or to take him or her out of the Territory, without the consent of such slave, he shall be adjudged guilty of grand larceny, and, on conviction thereof, SHALL SUFFER DEATH, or be imprisoned at hard labour for not less than ten years.

Sec. 5. If any person shall AID or ASSIST in enticing, decoying, or persuading, or carrying away, or sending out of this Territory any Slave belonging to another, with intent to procure or effect THE FREEDOM OF SUCH SLAVE, or to take him or her out of the Territory, without the consent of the owner thereof of the services of such slave, or WITH INTENT TO EFFECT OR PRODUCE THE FREEDOM OF SUCH SLAVE, he shall be adjudged guilty of grand larceny, and, on conviction thereof, SHALL SUFFER DEATH, or be imprisoned at hard labour for not less than ten years.

Sec. 6. If any person PRINT, WRITE, INTRODUCE INTO, PUBLISH OR CIRCULATE, or cause to be printed, written, introduced into this Territory, any book, paper, pamphlet, magazine, or handbill, containing any statements, arguments, sentiments, doctrine, advice or opinions, calculated to produce a disorderly, dangerous or rebellious disaffection among the Slaves in this Territory, or to induce such slaves to escape from the service of their masters, or to resist their authority, he shall be GUILTY OF FELONY, and be punished by imprisonment at hard labour for a term NOT LESS THAN TWO YEARS.

Sec. 12. If any free person, by speaking or writing, assert or maintain that persons have not the right to hold Slaves in this Territory, or shall introduce into the Territory, print, publish, write, circulate, or cause to be introduced into this Territory any denial of the right of persons to hold Slaves in this Territory, such person shall be deemed GUILTY OF FELONY, and, on conviction, shall suffer death, or imprisonment at hard labour for a term of NOT LESS THAN TWO YEARS.

Fleeing from this doomed Territory, let us enter the National Capital, and speak our minds freely as to this daring overthrow of all the safeguards of personal liberty; and while bending over the prostrate body of the bleeding Senator from Massachusetts, felled to the floor of the Senate Chamber by ruffian blows, we shall be saluted by the Virginia press in the following terms:

"These vulgar Abolitionists in the Senate are getting above themselves. They have been humoured until they forgot their position. They have grown saucy, and dare to be impudent to gentlemen. Now, they are in danger of a severe set, with stout hickory sticks, but as utterly devoid of spirit and honour as A PACK OF CURS.

"The truth is, that they have been suffered to run too long without collars. They NEED A GOOD WHIPPING. Sumner, in particular, should have a dozen or more nine-and-thirty early every morning. He is a great strapping fellow, and could stand the cowhide beautifully. Brooks frightened him, and at the first blow of the cane, he bellowed like a bull-calf.

"There is the blackguard Wilson, an ignorant Natick cobbler, swaggering in the Senate Chamber, and even attempting to be a leading man. Will not somebody take him in hand? Hale is another; ugh, red-faced, swearing scoundrel, whom some gentleman should kick and cuff until he abates something of his impudence and self-sufficiency.

"Southern gentlemen must protect their own honour and feelings. It is an idle mockery to challenge one of these scullions. It is equally useless to attempt to discipline them. They are not subject to any code. The nought to reason only by an application of cowhide or cutta percha. Let them once understand that for every vile word spoken against the South, THEY WILL SUFFER SO MANY STRIPES, and they will soon learn to behave themselves, like DECENT DOGS—they can never be gentlemen."

Forsaking the capital, we make an experiment of free speech in Carolina, and are menaced by the Charleston Telescope in the following style:

"Let us declare through the public journals of our country, that the question of slavery is not and shall not be open to discussion; that the system is too deep-rooted among us, and must remain forever; that the very moment any private individual attempts to agitate or open its evils and immorality, and the necessity of putting means in operation to secure us from them, in the same moment his tongue shall be cut out and cast upon the dung-hill."

Next, with the "stars and stripes" waving over our head, we proceed to Georgia, to assert our constitutional right to speak our thoughts freely; and the Georgia Constitutionalist tells us, one and all—

"The cry of the whole South should be, 'Death, instant death, to the Abolitionist, whenever or wherever they may be caught on our soil.'"

Finally we turn our steps to Louisiana, to prove the exact value of "our glorious Union," and it is given to us by the New Orleans True American as follows:

"We can assure the Bostonians, one and all, that if any attempt is ever made because of abolishing slavery at the South, that lashes will hereafter be spared the backs of their emissaries. Let them send out their men to Louisiana; they will never return to tell their sufferings, for the Lynch law shall expiate with their blood all their domestic institutions by being hurned at the stake."

Such is the personal liberty granted to us on our own Territory of Kansas, in our National Capitol, and throughout the South! In vain shall we make our appeal to Bunker Hill, and Lexington, and Concord; in vain shall we boast that revolutionary blood is flowing in our veins; in vain shall we point to the Constitution, or to the commands of God in the Bible; in vain shall we appeal to educational views on free soil, and disavow all hostility to the person or interests of the slaveholder; nothing remains for our heads but bludgeons, nothing for our hearts but bowie-knives, nothing for our necks but halters?

And yet, I reverently call the God of the oppressed to witness, we have not in anything transcended the claims of bleeding humanity, the duties of good citizens, the rights of patriots, or the obligations of Christians. We have assailed no man unjustly or by violence; we have sought the injury of no slaveholder; we have been lawabiding, in the highest sense of the word; we have not resisted, even to a disruption of the ties that bind this State to the Union?

That the restoration of the Missouri Compromise line by Congress would be a great wrong, resistance to which, even to the extent of a disruption of the Union, would be a sacred duty with all who cherish the essential principles of liberty, is a proposition self-evident to every equality?

What party at the North dare meet this issue? Will the Republican party, even to save Kansas? That party ... its fealty to the Union, come what may. What does it propose to do in regard to slavery in the District of Columbia? Nothing. What as touching the abolition of the inter-State slave trade? Nothing. What in reference to the repeal of the Fugitive Slave law? Nothing. What in reference to the admission of any slave State into the Union as a slave State? Nothing. Its position is simply to submit to it all, endorse it all, and shout, "Our glorious Union! it must and shall be preserved!" The Republican party has only a geographical aversion to slavery. Its mortality on that subject is bounded by 36 deg. 30 min. north latitude. It is a complexional party, exclusively for white men, not for all men, white or black. See what one of its organs, the Hartford Courant, says respecting its spirit and purpose:

"Republicanism is the white man's party. It is not because it is opposed to forming a party on a Sambo's cause, but we resist the progress of slavery in this country. We like the white man better than we do the black. We believe the Caucasian variety of the human species more elevated in the scale of humanity, and we shall breed the best stock, and fill up a noble land of ours—this broad country that the Almighty seems to have providentially (!) preserved as a blank sheet, upon which the white man may write a history that may be properly inscribed—with the noblest race of human beings possible. Colour is not the trouble; thick lips and woolly hair are not the objections. It is, that the African race are IRRADICABLY A NATURE inferior to better brain, better moral traits, better capacity, every way, than the Negro, or the Mongolian, or the Malay, or the Red American. That and their physical and mental superiority, we should consider the colour, hair, or odour, matters of no account. . . . To our minds the Republican cause is intrinsically aristocratic; it aims to save the country for the white man. . . . The Republican party is pro to preserve all this country that they can from the pestilential presence of the black man."

This is far from being the feeling or language of all who are members of the Republican party, but it indicates the precise position occupied by the party. Witness the forcible exclusion of all the free coloured citizens of the North from the soil of Kansas, by the Free State settlers therein, in flagrant violation of the spirit and letter of the Constitution of the United States, and as a cowardly concession to the infernal spirit of border ruffianism! How can such a party successfully grapple with the Slave Power on any issue?

We must separate, or lose our liberties. Slavery is the concentration of all forms of despotism in one. It can have no more affinity with republicanism than death with life. It is continually proclaiming doctrines at which ancient tyrants would have turned pale. It has long repudiated liberality, and boundless resources; the pliant and submissive Vandal of the South, helping her to smite freedom to the dust, and getting nothing in return but scorn, iguominy, insult and outrage of every kind! What loss of self-respect, what lack of principle, what hardness of heart, what blindness of mind it indicates on the part of the people of the North, to this day!

To me, the path is plain. To-day, I disown the American flag as the symbol of unequalled hypocrisy and transcendent oppression, and, casting it into the broad Atlantic, defy all the waters thereof to wash out its bloody stains. To-day, I renew my accusation against the American Constitution, that it is a covenant with death and an agreement with hell," which ought to be forthwith annulled now and forever. To-day, I pronounce the American Union a league of despotism, to perpetuate which is a crime against our common humanity, and a sin against God. To-day, I affirm the "Higher Law" to be the rightful and paramount law of the land, to the subversion of every statute, agreement and compromise, inimical to human freedom. To-day, I stand outside of this tyranical government, a seceder on principle, a revolutionist with Hancock, and Otis, and Warren, but upon a broader platform, with a loftier spirit, with better weapons, and for a nobler object. "For the Lord spake thus to me with a strong hand, and instructed me that I should not walk in the way of this people, saying, Say ye not, A conficderacy, to all them to whom this people shall say, A confederacy; neither fear ye their fear, nor be afraid. Sanctify the Lord of hosts himself; and let him be your fear, and he shall be for a sanctuary."

Let the howl of "Treason! treason!" go up from the throats of governmental mercenaries, designing knaves, unscrupulous demagogues, and murderous oppressors: It is music to my ears. I tear the mmsks from the faces of all these conspirators against Justice and the Right, and reveal their hideous faces to the gaze of a loathing world. Their profession of patriotism is a lie; they that are lost of them are destroyed; the sentence which they pronounce upon me is a passport to the confidence and love of all self-sacrificing friends of freedom, while they themselves openly commit. They are tories beyond all of revolutionary infamy; contemners of the rights, blurred and tattered parchment; advocates of "border ruffian" supremacy and universal slavery; revellers in corruption, crime and blood. Let such as these be marked by an execration of the loftiest order. When the wicked are exalted on every side, well may the land mourn and tremble.

The preservation of the existing Union is the certain triumph of the Slave Power in whatever it may seek to accomplish. Within that charmed circle, under that sorcery spell, we shall find ourselves powerless. There are a thousand weightier reasons why the North should separate from the South, than our revolutionary fathers had to secede from the mother country. Hear the language of no rash spirit, no impatient soul, but of the calm and deliberate Senate, with reference to the question of the annexation of Texas was pending before the country:

"To me it seems not only the right, but the duty of the free States, in case of the annexation of Texas, to say to the slaveholding States, 'We regard this act as the dissolution of the Union.' . . . A pacific division, in the first instance, seems to me to threaten the least danger and the lingering, feverish dissolution of the Union, such as must be expected under this fatal innovation. For one, then, I say, that, earnestly as I deprecate the separation of these States, and ardently as I desire to see every practicable and lished hope for my country, still I could submit to it more readily than to the reception of Texas into the confederacy." I do not desire to share the responsibility or to live under the laws of a government adopting such a policy.' 'If the South is bent on incorporating Texas with itself, as a new prop to slavery, it would do well to insist on a division of the Union, as the first step.'"

If Dr. Channing could regard the Union as no longer worthy of continuance, the government no longer deserving of respect, in such a contingency, what would he not say were he now living, to urge an immediate dissolution of the Union, in view of the appalling strides of the Slave Power since the annexation of Texas! Assuredly, upon his banner would be inscribed the motto under which we rally to-day, "NO UNION WITH SLAVEHOLDERS!"

Let us declare through the public journals of our country, that the question of slavery is not and shall not be open to discussion; that the system is too deep-rooted among us, and must remain forever; that the very moment any private individual attempts to agitate or open its evils and immorality, and the necessity of putting means in operation to secure us from them, in the same moment his tongue shall be cut out and cast upon the dung-hill."

Next, with the "stars and stripes" waving over our head, we proceed to Georgia, to assert our constitutional right to speak our thoughts freely; and the Georgia Constitutionalist tells us, one and all—

"The cry of the whole South should be, 'Death, instant death, to the Abolitionist, whenever or wherever they may be caught on our soil.'"

Finally we turn our steps to Louisiana, to prove the exact value of "our glorious Union," and it is given to us by the New Orleans True American as follows:

"We can assure the Bostonians, one and all, that if any attempt is ever made because of abolishing slavery at the South, that lashes will hereafter be spared the backs of their emissaries. Let them send out their men to Louisiana; they will never return to tell their sufferings, for the Lynch law shall expiate with their blood all their domestic institutions by being hurned at the stake."

Such is the personal liberty granted to us on our own Territory of Kansas, in our National Capitol, and throughout the South! In vain shall we make our appeal to Bunker Hill, and Lexington, and Concord; in vain shall we boast that revolutionary blood is flowing in our veins; in vain shall we point to the Constitution, or to the commands of God in the Bible; in vain shall we appeal to educational views on free soil, and disavow all hostility to the person or interests of the slaveholder; nothing remains for our heads but bludgeons, nothing for our hearts but bowie-knives, nothing for our necks but halters?

And yet, I reverently call the God of the oppressed to witness, we have not in anything transcended the claims of bleeding humanity, the duties of good citizens, the rights of patriots, or the obligations of Christians. We have assailed no man unjustly or by violence; we have sought the injury of no slaveholder; we have been lawabiding, in the highest sense of the word; we have not resisted, even to a disruption of the ties that bind this State to the Union?

That the restoration of the Missouri Compromise line by Congress would be a great wrong, resistance to which, even to the extent of a disruption of the Union, would be a sacred duty with all who cherish the essential principles of liberty, is a proposition self-evident to every equality?

What party at the North dare meet this issue? Will the Republican party, even to save Kansas? That party ... its fealty to the Union, come what may. What does it propose to do in regard to slavery in the District of Columbia? Nothing. What as touching the abolition of the inter-State slave trade? Nothing. What in reference to the repeal of the Fugitive Slave law? Nothing. What in reference to the admission of any slave State into the Union as a slave State? Nothing. Its position is simply to submit to it all, endorse it all, and shout, "Our glorious Union! it must and shall be preserved!" The Republican party has only a geographical aversion to slavery. Its mortality on that subject is bounded by 36 deg. 30 min. north latitude. It is a complexional party, exclusively for white men, not for all men, white or black. See what one of its organs, the Hartford Courant, says respecting its spirit and purpose:

"Republicanism is the white man's party. It is not because it is opposed to forming a party on a Sambo's cause, but we resist the progress of slavery in this country. We like the white man better than we do the black. We believe the Caucasian variety of the human species more elevated in the scale of humanity, and we shall breed the best stock, and fill up a noble land of ours—this broad country that the Almighty seems to have providentially (!) preserved as a blank sheet, upon which the white man may write a history that may be properly inscribed—with the noblest race of human beings possible. Colour is not the trouble; thick lips and woolly hair are not the objections. It is, that the African race are IRRADICABLY A NATURE inferior to better brain, better moral traits, better capacity, every way, than the Negro, or the Mongolian, or the Malay, or the Red American. That and their physical and mental superiority, we should consider the colour, hair, or odour, matters of no account. . . . To our minds the Republican cause is intrinsically aristocratic; it aims to save the country for the white man. . . . The Republican party is pro to preserve all this country that they can from the pestilential presence of the black man."

This is far from being the feeling or language of all who are members of the Republican party, but it indicates the precise position occupied by the party. Witness the forcible exclusion of all the free coloured citizens of the North from the soil of Kansas, by the Free State settlers therein, in flagrant violation of the spirit and letter of the Constitution of the United States, and as a cowardly concession to the infernal spirit of border ruffianism! How can such a party successfully grapple with the Slave Power on any issue?

We must separate, or lose our liberties. Slavery is the concentration of all forms of despotism in one. It can have no more affinity with republicanism than death with life. It is continually proclaiming doctrines at which ancient tyrants would have turned pale. It has long repudiated liberality, and boundless resources; the pliant and submissive Vandal of the South, helping her to smite freedom to the dust, and getting nothing in return but scorn, iguominy, insult and outrage of every kind! What loss of self-respect, what lack of principle, ecting and honourable men—all appeal to us to bring union end pertnership with these murderers and meu-ers to an immediate and perpetnal end. Let us lay every weight, every doubt, every unworthy fear, in the contest which must come, quit us like men, not slink away like slaves. Let us join together, one all, upon high and honest gronnd, against the com-foes of man and of God—against the cruellest, nest and most cowardly despots on whom the sun s down.

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON, President.

M. W. YERRINTON, } Secretaries.
MUEL MAY, Jr.,

Our thanks are due, on behalf of our readers, to the editor of Liberator for the above report.

THE TRIAL OF BROOKS.

The trial of Brooks, the chivalric M. C. from South olina, who heat Mr. Sumner in the Senate, after had put that gentleman beyond defence by an xpected end stunning blow while he was pinioned ed between a desk and an arm-chair, was had befors ge Crawford, on Tuesday last. There may have been e surprise that it was thought worth while at all at shington to take any legal steps in such a matter, re murders and maimings are coming to he Congres-al pastimes by prescriptive right; hut there will be surprise at the verdict. The luxury of half-killing a ator costs just $300. As Brooks took care to provide his own safety beforehand, so, probably, his consti-s will see to it that the fine shall he paid by the ic, and the new sport, therefore, will no doubt be-e a favourite one. It remains now to see for how h a Congressman may kill a waiter.

After the production of evidence, which is reported as stantially the same as that heretofore elicited before Congressional Committee—and which proved, if man testimony ever proved anything, that Brooks is h a brutal ruffien and a most craven coward—the pri-er addressed the Court in the words following, which worth reading, if only as an evidence of what dainty rds can be chosen to defend a dirty deed:

BROOKS'S SPEECH.

"May it please your Honour: May I be permitted to a word? [Judge Crawford—Certainly.] I appear in son before this honourable Court simply to receive its gment. I would have preferred that the person upon om the assault was committed had been present to wer whether or not his speech which libelled my State d my blood, was printed before its delivery in the Se-e. I feel confident that, under oath, he could not have ied this fact, which, with due deference to your honour, egard as material to my defence, insomuch as a libel ontrary to law, and to that extent would operate in enuation of my offence.

"I would like to have inquired of him, in person, as to degree of his personal injuries, and to have been in-med in what way he could reconcile that part of his tement as to the words used by me when the assault e made, with the sentence which immediately succeeds language in his testimony before the Investigating mmittee, and which is as follows:

'While these words were passing from his [my] lips, he com-nce a successioo of blows with a heavy cane on my bare head, he first of which I was stunned so as to lose sight.'

"It would have gratified me had he heen compelled to wer under oath as to the violence of the first blow, ich, I ever, was hut a tap, and intended to put him on guard.

"But, sir, he is conveniently and deliberately absent d on travel, notwithstanding hut six days ago this case s postponed on account of his extreme indisposition d the materiality of his testimony; and yet, with all se disadvantages, I prefer to receive the judgment of Court than to continue in suspense.

"It is not my purpose to address any evidence in de-ce.

"I have already accomplished more than half the jour-y of my life, and this is the first time it has heen my sfortune to be arraigned hefore any judicial tribunal as reaker of any law of my country. I confess, sir, and thout shame, that my sensibilities are disturbed by my vel position, and I have but to express my profound gret that in discharging a duty imposed upon me by my n sense of right and the sentiment of the gallant peo-e it is my pride and honour to represent, I am con-gined as a consequence to approach you as a violator d not as a maker of the laws.

"In extenuation of my offence, permit me to say, that extraordinary power of invention is requisite to imagine variety of personal grievances, which the good of soci-y and even public morality require to be redressed; d yet no adequate legal remedy may be had. So also e those cases which may fall under the condemnation of e letter of the law, and yet like considerations will strain its penalties. The villain who perverts the hest elings of the better sex, and rewards unsuspecting devo-on with ruin, may hid defiance to this honourable court. t where a sister's dishonour is blotted out with the ood of her destroyer, an intelligent and wholesome pub-c opinion, embodied in an intelligent and virtuous jury, ways has, and always will, control the law, and popular ntiment will applaud what the books may condemn.

"It is the glory of the law that it is founded in reason. t can that reasoning be just which is not regardful of man feeling? Sir, no one knows better than yourself at such e reproach does not rest upon our jurisprudence; , even the stern letter of the law touches with tender-ss the husband who slays in the act the usurper of his d. The child who kills in defence of its parent is ex-sed by the law, which is ever regardful of the virtuous pulses of nature.

"By a parity of reasoning, patriotism is regarded by ery nation upon earth as the cardinal political virtue. ns are made to reward it, and to perpetuate the namee those who are its exemplars. And can it he expected—ll it be required—that I, with a heart to feel and an n to strike, shall patiently hear and ignobly submit ile my political mother is covered with insult, and loquy, and dishonour, while her character is slandered d her reputation libelled?

"Sir, the substance which I have been gathering for my ldren may he squandered, my hody may be consigned the common jail, my life itself may be forfeited, but I ll be true to the instincts of my nature—true to the me of my maturity, and to the mother that bore me.

"The first political lesson which my ripening faculties ly comprehended and appreciated, was the high moral d social obligations of every citizen to bow himself to e majesty of the law. In obedience to the precepts of y youth, which are sanctioned by the experience and dgment of mature years, I submit my case to the discre-on of the Court with entire confidence, that while you, , as a magistrate, perform your whole duty to the untry and yourself, you will remember that in every gulated community, public opinion distinguishes be-een crime end honourable resentment, and tolerates the fenge which men sometimes seek in the magnanimity of eir judges."

Upon the conclusion of Mr. Brooks's remarks, Judge rawford proceeded to give the following decision:

"As this matter will be within a short time the subject f investigation in another place, and, as it is not neces-ary to the discharge of my duty that I should remark on he evidence adduced, which I could not do without ouching on some of the points that will, probably, be aised elsewhere, it appears to me to be proper that the sen-ence of the Court should he pronounced without com-ment. That sentence is that the defendant pay a fine of $300."

THE KANSAS QUESTION IN CONGRESS.

The motion of Mr. Barclay, of Pa. (Dem.), to reconsider the vote by which the bill for the admission of Kansas to the Union under the Topeka Constitution was rejected, was adopted by the House, on the 3d inst., by a vote of 101 to 99; and the bill was subsequently passed, 99 to 97.

The Senate remained in session during the whole of Wednesday night (2d inst.) for the purpose of reaching a vote on Douglas's new bill for the settlement of the difficulties in Kansas. The debate was exceedingly earnest and exciting. Messrs. Wade, Seward, Wilson, Hale and Trumbull worried the slaveholders and their Northern allies by a fearless exposure of the great fraud intended to be perpetrated by the bill. Mr. Wilson moved to strike out all after the enacting clause in the bill, and insert, "All acts passed by the Legislature of Kansas, or any assembly acting as such, be and the same are hereby abrogated and declared void and of no effect." He said the design of the bill, notwithstanding the outside appearance of fairness in some of its provisions, was to make Kansas a slave State. The report just made to the House showed that there were 4,900 Missourians forced on the people of that Territory, and that it was the Legislature which passed inhuman and unchristian enactments that occasioned all the troubles. His proposition was designed as a preliminary to other legislation to protect the people in their rights, and punish all violations of the laws of the country.

Mr. Seward said he would, with the greatest pleasure, vote for Mr. Wilson's amendment. The present bill can have no other tendency and effect than to confirm the success of the object of the passage of the law abrogating the Missouri Compromise, and form a slave State out of Kansas. There is no code, there are no laws and no legal society in Kansas other than that of the organic act of 1854. The Government of that Territory is a usurpation and tyranny, and there are no legal nor moral obligations to treat it with the least respect. The House, more true to freedom than the Senate, sent a commission thither, whose report establishes these facts beyond question. The day for compromises has ended.

Mr. Toombs—I am glad of it.

Mr. Seward—And so am I; henceforth we take our stand on the Constitution—

Mr. Toombs (interrupting)—On the higher law.

Mr. Seward (continuing)—They who stand there are firm, and those who do not are on a slippery and unsubstantial foothold.

Mr. Toombs—I think so when you get on the higher law.

Crittenden and Clayton, Fillmore Whig Know-Nothings, prated of compromise and conciliation, in weak imitation of Clay and Webster.

Mr. Wilson's amendment was lost, 8 to 35. Mr. Geyer, of Missouri, moved an amendment making void some of the worst of the Border Ruffian laws, which was supported by Gen. Cass and adopted. Mr. Seward offered a substitute admitting Kansas under the Topeka Constitution. Lost, 11 to 36. The bill finally passed, 33 to 12.

On Tuesday last, Mr. Douglas, from the Committee on Territories, to which had been referred the House bill admitting Kansas to the Union, reported the same back with an amendment striking out all after the enacting clause and filling the blank with the bill previously passed by the Senate. The amendment was adopted, 32 to 13.

And now must come a struggle in the House. The Border Ruffian Democrats and the Fillmore Know-Nothings have entered into league, and will leave no stone unturned to get the Senate bill through the House. The vote is so close and the slaveholders are so desperate, that we fear the effort will be successful. We shall see. The correspondent of The Tribune is hopeful. He says:

"It is now certain, beyond doubt, that this infamous measure cannot pass the House. The Kansas Report has done the work, and many gentlemen who voted against the Bill admitting Kansas as a free State will vote against the Toombs-Douglas bill, and there are quite a number of others who are indifferent whether it passes or not."

LETTER FROM T. E. SULIOT.

Respected Friend: My friend, the Editor of the London Anti-Slavery Advocate, is a little mistaken in supposing that if "I have not yet come forward publicly to the aid of the Abolitionists" it is because "being of an eminently cautious and judicial cast of mind, I have taken all the time I have been in this country (six years) to deliberate on the best means of abolishing slavery." My mind was made up ever since the passing of the Fugitive Slave law. My former objections to what I considered unnecessarily harsh and irritating language, calculated to defeat its own purposes, and to the want of charitable allowance for the training, habits, temptations and difficulties of slaveholders have vanished long ago before the audacious spirit of usurpation and reckless violence which becomes daily more characteristic of the Pro-Slavery party. If ever I feel inclined to blame the Abolitionists, it is for the frequency and severity of their strictures on the Republican party, which seems to contain many sincere and earnest haters of oppression. Ought not more forbearance be shown to a party whose ultimate, though not immediate, object is the same—the extinction of slavery by peaceful and moral agency? As to myself, without feeling it my duty to join the ranks of political Abolitionists, I would joyfully accept, as the fruit of political agitation, the restriction of slavery, looking upon it merely as an instalment of the whole debt. The accusations of lukewarmness and inconsistency seem to rest on the gratuitous assumption that the Republican party aims at nothing beyond confining slavery within the existing slave States, and that having accomplished this, it would rest from its labours and leave the slaves to their fate. I can understand, though I cannot share, the enthusiastic love of the Union which would go to the utmost length of political forbearance and compromise to preserve the Union of these States. But whilst, in their capacity of political agitators, they cannot, consistently with that Constitution which they have sworn to support, do more than restrict slavery within its constitutional limits, there is nothing to hinder them, as men, from exerting all moral influences, both now and afterwards, in order to create or rouse in the South a healthy public opinion, the pressure of which may, in time, compel those slave States themselves to devise the means of abolishing within their own borders an institution with which Congress cannot interfere without a violation of the Constitutional compact, that is, without a revolution and the inevitable consequence—a dissolution of the Union. We prefer to such a tardy and uncertain course the immediate severance of the unnatural bond which binds us to slavery and makes us unwilling partakers in its sin. We prefer the motto, "No Union with Slaveholders!" to such temporizing policy; but it does not follow that, even if injudicious, they are indifferent to the evil and sin of slavery in the South; and that, therefore, they are, by that "indifference," and the actual "dishonesty of their position," "the greatest obstruction" to the cause of immediate and universal emancipation. Such language of some of your lecturers is painful because it is unjust, and to bear it I require to remind myself of the self-denying devotedness and purity of purpose of those apostles of liberty.

However, I take this opportunity to declare that my inactivity in the cause of Abolition proceeds only from my ignorance of what I can do to serve it. I have no talent for public speaking, and so I cannot come forward as a lecturer. Money—I have none. The exigencies of a rough farm in the West, and my inexperience of farming life, have crippled my means which were small in the outset. I must be just before I can be generous—I must pay my debts before I can indulge in the luxury of beneficence. All I can say is: point out a way in which I can be of some use and I will do my best. There is, indeed, a line of service which I did think might open for me, congenial to my former life as a teacher, viz., the devoting such experience and acquirements as I possess to the instruction and elevation of the coloured people in America. Two years ago, I did address, on that subject, a letter to the men whom I looked up to as the virtual head and representative of the coloured race—Frederick Douglass, but he took no notice of my letter, and, in my discouragement, I gave up the idea. Nothing seems left for me just now but to place my humble home and my time at the disposal of such lecturers as may think it expedient to visit our district over which hangs the shadow of Know-Nothingism and Sham Democracy.

Yours respectfully, T. E. SULIOT.

Franklin, Portage Co., Ohio.

AN IMPOSTER.

To the Editors of The Standard.

Allow me, through the columns of your widely circulated paper, to make some statements of importance for the security and well-being of the Anti-Slavery cause, in regard to the present system of begging which has for some time been extensively carried on by one William C. Carter, who was published in the Provincial Freeman, a paper published by the coloured people in Chatham, C. W., last Autumn, afterwards copied in The Standard. Mr. Carter is certainly a man possessed of more assurance than beggars generally, which is unquestionably one cause of his success. I have known him personally for some time and am somewhat acquainted with his circumstances (pecuniary). He was a resident of Detroit some sixteen years ago and since that time has resided in Canada. The early part of his residence in Canada was about Malden, after which he went to CHATHAM, where he has resided for at least six years; and is now a British subject, entitled to the rights and privileges, in common with other subjects, and an owner of property; still, he has been travelling through this section of the country begging; sometimes to buy himself, and at other times his family. By some means he obtained papers to which are attached the names of creditable gentlemen, of whom he frequently boasts, as being favourable to his course. Knowing those gentlemen as I do by character, I have thought it singular that they should suffer their names to be connected with such a system of robbery as is being imposed upon the public by Carter. In order that the friends of the slave may not be deluded in their desires to do good, by contributing their means to the use of this base Imposter, I will describe as near as I can his appearance. Carter is a man about six feet high, of light-brown complexion, prominent features, erect in walk, and fluent in speech, fully calculated to take advantage of many persons who are devoted to the cause of the oppressed. The anti-slavery cause is one worthy of support, but I think it full time the public were relieved of such villains. I have been informed from a creditable source, that he has travelled through some Counties in New York, where he went almost from house to house and obtained moneys to a considerable amount, and in this city (Detroit) and adjoining country he has collected large sums. It is believed by some that he is associated with others on the Canadian side in furthering this imposition.

H. J. Brooks.

Detroit, June 20, 1856.

A Timely Work.—Messrs. Dix & Edwards have in press a History of Kansas since the passage of the Kansas and Nebraska bill up to the present time. It is made up, we understand, of authentic documents and unimpeachable testimony relating to the present condition of that Territory, and the causes which produced it. The work is compiled by one peculiarly competent for such a task, and may be relied upon implicitly for its truthfulness. It ought to have a large circulation.

"Our Country's Troubles."—The discourse on this subject, lately delivered to his congregation by the Rev. Dudley A. Tyng, Rector of the Church of the Epiphany (Episcopal), Philadelphia, will appear in The Standard next week.

Our Kansas Correspondence.

THE WAR IN KANSAS.

Lawrence, K. T., June 22, 1856.

Messrs. Editors: Here we are in the midst of a civil war. For many long weeks have our eyes been directed, imploringly, towards the "Star in the East," hoping that it would direct some Eastern sages to this battle-ground for freedom. But no one comes. We hear of monster meetings in our behalf, but time rolls on, and no forces appear to aid us in our feeble struggle against the myrmidons of the Slave Power. The combat deepens. Thicker and thicker become the clouds that hang over our destiny. It is from the North alone that we can hope. Our own forces are by far too few, and too poor, to fight the enemy, except in small guerilla bands, which, at present, are our only means of defence.

Since I wrote you last, giving you a detailed account of the burning of the hotel, murders, robbery and brutal outrages of every name and kind have become frequent. We are emphatically an enslaved people. The following pass will give you a faint idea of the extent of our enslavement:

Executive Office, June 14, 1856.
Lecompton, K. T.

The bearer of this letter is Mr. Hancock, a citizen who resides near this place. He informs me that he had three teams taken from him, between Kansas City and Westport. He goes down with the view of reclaiming his property. I have to request all good citizens to aid and assist Mr. Hancock in getting his property, and that he be permitted to pass and repass on the road, without molestation or hindrance. Wilson Shannon.

All communication between here and Kansas, except for the mail, has been closed until recently; and even now it is not safe for a Free State team to pass on that road. Our goods are mostly brought from Leavenworth. The consequence is great depression of the business of the Kansas City merchants, which they feel extremely. Westport is emphatically the guiltiest town of the two, but Kansas has failed to vindicate our rights, and we have resolved to abandon her.

There is so much that is interesting, with which to fill my sheet, that I hardly know what to select for the edification of your readers. Dr. J. V. C. Smith, of rendition-of-Burns memory, was here last week, and said that the Border Ruffians excelled all other villains with whom he had ever met, in Egypt, Arabia, Mexico or California. They make nothing of robbing a Free State man of his horses, wagon and goods, and shooting him and leaving him on the prairie to die. Such cases are quite common. A man cannot condemn the most brutal murders without endangering his own safety. For instance, a week ago to-night, a Free State man in this town was killed by a Pro-Slavery man, who avers that he did it in self-defence. Some persons doubt the truth of his story; but they do it at their peril, for this pro-slavery man-slayer, a Mr. Harvey from Wisconsin, has power to arrest whoever he sees fit, as accomplices in the alleged attack upon him. He has 15 or 20 U. S. troops at his command, and rides into town occasionally, exhibiting his power by ordering the troops to take this or that man, according to his notion.

Freedom is banished from our soil. We enjoy precisely the liberty a resident of the Sultan's dominions does, and no more. For instance, a Mr. Hoyt, arrested the other day, demanded of Harvey his authority. "By my authority, by G—d," exclaimed the captain of the troops.

Let it be distinctly understood that Col. Sumner is acting in unison with the Border Ruffians, for he refuses us justice when we demand it, and now threatens to deliver us into the hands of the ruffians, unless we will submit. He pretends to act impartially; but it is plain that where he disarms one Pro-Slavery man, he does the same to two Free State men, if opportunity offers. For instance, when 200 of these ruffians were encamped upon Bull Creek, between here and Kansas, and 100 of our boys had assembled to meet them, and, in our parlance, were about to "pitch in" to them, Sumner, although he knew that these ruffians were from Missouri, and that our men were simply fighting for their homes and firesides, yet disarmed the latter first, and then ordered the Borderers to leave, thus placing us at their mercy. They seemingly obeyed his order, but, when his back was turned, rallied and sacked Osawatomie, as Lawrence was sacked. They pillaged from every house and store, and actually took the rings from the ladies' fingers and ears. This I am assured of by a citizen of Osawatomie.

Several skirmishes have occurred in that section of country, in all of which Freedom's boys have been victorious. In one of them, 5 ruffians were shot, and not a single Free State man was injured. In another, 17 of our men took prisoner Capt. Pate, the correspondent of the Missouri Republican, and about 30 other men. Pate said his men were the greatest cowards in the world. Our men are always willing to meet just double their number. At a battle at Franklin, 3 miles from here, in the night, not one of our men was wounded, while quite a number of the enemy were shot, and they had a cannon to defend themselves with.

Guerilla parties, led on by fearless and valiant men, have, under God, saved us so far from complete destruction. They have repulsed the enemy and made him afraid of us. The Border Ruffians know now that we are not all Non-Resistants, like Pomeroy, Roberts & Co. at the time of the burning of the hotel.

I yesterday saw the chains, 6 feet in length, which were fastened upon the limbs of some of our men who were taken prisoners, and in which they were forced to walk 25 miles. Very good; as the Richmond Enquirer says, we have been without the yoke long enough. The people here are fast learning what you Abolitionists have always tried to teach us, that Slavery is no respecter of persons. The white man is treated just as the black man is at the South. We feel it, but, like the blacks, must submit, because the infernal Government of the United States backs up our, as it does their, oppressors.

United States troops ride around in all directions, to aid pro-slavery men to recover their property, and to defend their houses, but never to do the same for the Free State men. If the troops were out of the way, there would be a general fight, and every one is anxious for it to take place; for, under the present circumstances, we can do nothing, nearly all business being at a stand, and farmers unwilling to put in a large amount of seed. After a battle, it will be determined which party is to rule, and the other will leave the Territory. It is quite certain that one or the other party will be driven out of the Territory. The prospects are dark for us, but we "hope on, hope ever." As I have already mentioned, our only hope is in the North. Freedom is to be driven out or Slavery to be banished from the Territory by the force of arms. This is a settled question, and every day increases its certainty. The Pro-Slavery party, finding that Congressional Committees are too much for them in the way of voting, now swear that we shall be driven out of the Territory, at the point of the bayonet. The Free State men swear that they will not leave, and, therefore, a battle must ensue. It is commonly supposed that this battle will be fought at or near Topeka, on or about the 4th of July. On that day, the State Legislature meets, and the Missourians, it is said, are already marshalling their forces to that end.

I wish here to renew my protest against this State movement. A few interested politicians originated it, and its effects have been "evil, only evil, and that continually." The last war was caused by it, and so has been the present. But still our friends are duped, and wish to rush blindly on in this State movement. It may turn out best, in the end, in precipitating upon us the decision of this question, but I fear the result of the battle. If the North were only here to aid us, we might succeed; but if our reinforcements do not arrive by the 4th, and the Legislature assembles then, look out for bloody times for the Free State party. All will not be lost even if we are then defeated, for the Territory will be aroused, and we shall be able to surround the enemy, and to retain our position until reinforced from Iowa. But not a moment is to be lost. Send on your men and money, if you expect Kansas to become free.

Yours in earnest, Truth.

Hon. Anson Burlingame's recent speech in vindication of the Old Bay State and rebuking the aggressions and usurpations of the Slave Power has won for him a high degree of popularity among the people of that Commonwealth. On his arrival in Boston the other day, he was met by a crowd of his fellow-citizens eager to evince their appreciation of his boldness and fidelity. He was also honoured with a public reception at Cambridge, his place of residence.

Littell's Living Age.—No. 631 is on our table. It opens with an interesting, and, in many respects, a very sensible paper, from the National Review, on "The Political Prophecies of America." It contains also several fresh chapters of "The Fortunes of Glencore," some excellent poetry and a variety of short articles. The number closes the thirteenth volume of the new series. New York, 343 Broadway.

Rev. Abel Stevens, a Methodist clergyman, in Zion's Herald for Sept. 27, 184, said: "We believe that slavery has no more constitutional right in the Methodist Church than the Devil himself, and we are determined to use all befitting measures to drive it out." Mr. Stevens was a member of the late General Conference, in which an effort was made to "drive out" slavery from the Church. Instead of helping those who made that effort, he went over, on the practical issue, to the pro-slavery party, and made a speech in which he declared, that the Methodist Church "is historically, constitutionally and administratively a slaveholding, though an anti-slavery (!!) Church." For coming to the help of the pro-slavery party at the moment of its greatest need, he received the votes by which he was made the editor, for the next four years, of The Christian Advocate and Journal, the national organ of the Church. His treachery was of couse mixed up with vehement professions of devotion to the anti-slavery cause, which he thought in danger from ultraism; but those who are not wilfully blind must see through such disguises. The simple truth is, that Mr. Stevens is a wily, ambitious and priestly trimmer, and he has secured a coveted berth by lending himself as a tool to the pro-slavery party.

The Christian Examiner and Religious Miscellany. No. CXCVI July, 1856. Boston: Crosby, Nichols & Co. New York: C. S. Francis & Co., 554 Broadway.

In this number of the Examiner we find the following papers:

I. The Progressive Friends. By Rev. J. Freeman Clarke.
II. The Physical Geography of the Sea. By Rev. S. G. Bulfinch.
III. Unitarianism and Orthodoxy on the Atonement. By Rev. George E. Ellis.
IV. The Two Temples. By Nathan H. Chamberlain.
V. The Origin of Ancient Names of Countries, Cities, Individuals, Gods. By Samuel Fales Dunlap, Esq.
VI. Motley's Dutch Republic. By Rev. John Weiss.
VII. Governor Bradford's History of Plymouth Plantation. By Rev. George E. Ellis.
Notices of Recent Publications.
Literary Intelligence.

Mr. Clarke's notice of the Progressive Friends is exceedingly candid and fraternal, but he does not seem to us to have apprehended exactly the fundamental principle of their organization. He does full justice, however, to the spirit and aims of a movement which has awakened no small degree of interest among progressive and earnest minds in nearly every sect. Mr. Ellis's paper on the Atonement is an able statement and vindication of the views generally held on that subject by Unitarians; and Mr. Weiss's review of Motley's History is exceedingly interesting.

Summary.

F. F. V. now stands for Freedom, Fremont and Victory, and not for the First Families in Virginia.

At the late session of Gilmer County Court, Va., the Grand Jury of that County presented the editor of the Cincinnati Western Christian Advocate for publishing abolition doctrines, and also Rev. Levi Parke, for circulating the paper.

A Massachusetts paper says that in accordance with the wishes of Henry Ward Beecher's Congregation, the Reverend gentleman has offered for sale his beautiful Summer residence in Lenox, Mass. His admirers desire him to reside nearer Brooklyn, where they propose to provide him with a pleasant country seat.

Remarkable Celebration.—There was a school celebration of American Independence at Quincy, on the 4th inst. The oration was delivered by Hon. Charles Francis Adams, the Declaration of Independence read by his talented son, John Quincy Adams, and the services were held in the Church under which repose the remains of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Oratory.—The Mississippi papers are showing up one of their members of Congress, Hon. H. S. Bennet, in a style that makes him look, and no doubt will make him feel, very foolish. That gentleman lately delivered a speech in Congress, which was nearly a literal transcript of one delivered some years ago in the same body, by that gifted orator, S. S. Prentiss.

Southern Chivalry.—The Boston Gazette of June 27th, 1812, speaking of the war then existing, said:

"The drafted militia of South Carolina, like the conscripts of France, are brought to their duty only at the point of the bayonet!"

The Lawrence Courier remembers to have heard an old gentleman say of the Southern troops engaged in the same war, that they were "infernal brags, swore like devils, and ran like hounds!"

Punch has a capital picture, representing John Bull and Brother Jonathan as individuals. It is entitled "Please return a favourable answer." Mr. Bull is extending his right hand to Jonathan, with the words: "Come, Jonathan, why should we fight—am I not a man and a brother?" Jonathan is represented with his left hand in his breeches pocket, while his right hand is holding a lighted cigar, and it is quite evident from the expression of his features that he has to make an effort to withhold his assent to the considerate and hearty request of Mr. John Bull.

Triumph of Faith.—During an earthquake that occurred a few years since, the inhabitants of a small village were generally very much alarmed, and at the same time surprised at the calmness and apparent joy of an old lady whom they all knew. At length one of them, addressing the old lady said,

"Mother ——, are you not afraid?"

"No," said the mother in Israel; "I rejoice to know that I have a God that can shake the world!"

There was a State Teachers' meeting held in St. Louis, about a month since, at which Horace Mann was present; and, notwithstanding he came by the invitation of the State Superintendent of Schools in Missouri, he was treated with the utmost indifference and even coldness, both by citizens and teachers, because, forsooth, he was an Abolitionist. The association passed a resolution authorizing the chairman to permit (invite, I believe was the word used, but permit was clearly its spirit) Mr. Mann to occupy a seat on the platform. (!) The teachers, editors and citizens generally, noticed him no more than they would the veriest pigmy, although the public address which he delivered before the Association was the only one which did not earn the unenviable reputation of putting the audience to sleep.—Missouri Cor. Ohio Columbian.

Washington and Congress.—The following anecdote of the late Governor Jay, one of the purest and most illustrious statesmen, is furnished to us by his son, Judge Jay:

"Shortly before the death of John Adams, I was sitting alone with my father, conversing about the American Revolution. Suddenly he remarked: 'Ah, William! the history of that revolution will never be known. Nobody now alive knows it but John Adams and myself.' Surprised at such a declaration I asked him to what he referred. He briefly replied, 'The proceedings of the old Congress.' Again I inquired, 'What proceedings?' He answered, 'Those against Washington, from first to last there was a most bitter party against him.'"

As the old Congress always sat with closed doors, the public knew no more of what passed within than what it was deemed expedient to disclose.—Irving.

Mr. Burlingame's Speech is said to have conquered a peace. The firm tone maintained by General Wilson and the Northern Senators and Representatives generally, has contributed to this result. Butler, Brooks and Keitt roar as gently as sucking doves. South Carolina has sent on all its whips, canes and paddles, so that until a new supply is received from Northern artisans, her slaves must, to a great extent, remain unflogged, but no use has yet been made of them, though the provocations has been remarkably frequent. Perhaps these quiet times, however, will not last. Northern men are on their guard, just now, and if Wilson and Burlingame allow themselves to be caught with their legs under their desks, the chivalry may make an onset with pistols and bludgeons, and the Sumner outrage be repeated. We, however, attribute the lull to the nomination of Fremont, and to the unmistakable signs that the people of the North are about to elect him. This is the reason why the white feather is exhibited so plainly.—Boston Telegraph.

Hon. Gerrit Smith upon Col. Fremont.—The Ex-County Clerk and other Buccaneers hereabouts having started a story that Col. Fremont was a slaveholder—that he had sold 100 only a year ago, &c., L. B. Kern, Esq., of Morrisville, addressed a letter to Hon. Gerrit Smith, inquiring as to the truth of the charge.

The following is Mr. Smith's reply:

"Peterboro, June 20, 1856.

"L. B. Kern, Esq.—Dear Sir: I am personally acquainted with Col. Fremont and his wife. They are both opposed to slavery. I know from her own lips that she is strongly opposed to it. It may be, but I do not think it possible, that Col. Fremont has been a slaveholder.

"Mrs. Fremont once told me that her mother taught her children to dislike slavery. She was the wife of Col. Benton, and the sister of Gov. McDowell, of Virginia.

"Respectfully your friend, Gerrit Smith."

—Madison Co. (N. Y.) Journal.

A Long Look Ahead.—A cotemporary turns his vision to the future, and through the misty distance of two hundred years sees and describes the following:

Scene—House of a citizen of New York.

Time—A. D. 2056. A telegraphic message has been sent to the servant, who presents himself at the window in a balloon.

Master—John, go to South America and tell Mr. Johnson that I shall be happy to have him sup with me this evening. Never mind your coat, go right away.

In five minutes John returns.

John—Mr. Johnson says he will come; he is obliged to go to the North Pole for a moment, and will call here when he comes back.

Master—Very well, John; now you may wind up the machine for setting the table, and telegraph to my wife that Mr. Johnson will be here presently. After that, John, you may dust out my balloon. I have an appointment in London at 12 o'clock.

John disappears to execute these orders, while his master steps down to the West Indies to get a fresh orange.

Perseverance against Difficulties.—Hon. Richard Mott, of the Fifth District of Ohio, has been for some time past on the Long Island shore, for the benefit of his health. On Tuesday last, a despatch was sent to him, stating the importance of his presence here, to vote on the Kansas bill. The despatch fell into the hands of his nephew, at New York, who saw that it would be impossible to get it to Mr. Mott by any ordinary channel, in time to be of service. Accordingly, he proceeded to the river side, where he chartered a steamer which he found already fired up, proceeded to his uncle's rural retreat for which he had to hunt in the darkness of night, awoke him from his sleep, and conveyed him to New York in time to take the Wednesday evening train for this city. He arrived here on Thursday morning, and the vote of Richard Mott was recorded for the bill to give peace and security and the rights of free men to the citizens of Kansas. Such energy and perseverance in a good cause are worthy of commemoration. How much more honorable and manly is the achievement of the nephew of Mr. Mott, than was that of another nephew who so recently assailed the life of a Senator for exercising that freedom of speech which Border Ruffianism has suppressed in Kansas.—Wash. Cor. Times.

New States.—The people of Utah have framed a State Constitution, which ignores Slavery, polygamy, &c., and apply for admission to the Union. The Richmond Whig is puzzled as to the proper action in the premises. It concedes that the application is all right in form; "On the outside there is no ground for exception"; but,

"Beneath the substance is that horrible moral and social pest—polygamy. It is difficult to say what should be done. Congress has no right to dictate the domestic law of any State, but it has the right to refuse to admit a Territory into the Union as a State. It will be a terrible disgrace to the Union to have a State tolerating and encouraging polygamy, but it may be that is the best means of reforming that deluded people."

The idea of admitting a State in order to "reform" its institutions, is novel and rather good. Does The Whig propose that Congress should admit Utah in order to obtain jurisdiction of her domestic institutions, and then "reform" them? How would the same doctrine apply to certain other "domestic institutions?" Congress has just as much control over slavery in South Carolina, as it would have over polygamy in Utah, if Utah were admitted as a State; and no more. We shall be somewhat curious to see what ground Southern politicians will take upon this question when it comes before Congress. They have been fond of asserting, lately, that Congress was bound to admit new States, without regard to the character of their domestic institutions. If this be true concerning slavery, it must, also, be true concerning polygamy. Utah cannot be excluded upon any theory of power which would not, also, authorize the exclusion of any new slave State.—N. Y. Times.

The Coloured Population of Cincinnati, as we learn from the press of that city, number 5,000, of both sexes, and the Sun says "they are, as a general thing, sober, thrifty, and industrious." Of their occupations and wealth it is stated—there are five physicians, one of whom has a very large practice among both whites and blacks; twelve grocers; thirty music and school teachers; five daguerreotypists; one patent roofer; five bricklayers and stonemasons; two trunkmakers; twelve dealers in market; five or six boot and shoemakers; a number of excellent tailors, blacksmiths and carpenters; and one hundred milliners, dressmakers, shirt makers and tailoresses. Among them is Henry Boyd, one of the largest, and best cabinet manufacturers in the city, who is worth at least $40,000; J. P. Ball, R. G. Ball, and J. C. Ball, who take as fine daguerreotypes as are taken in the world, and who are worth $30,000 at least.

The names of thirteen of these coloured people are given, whose property is valued at $10,000; three $6,000; five $5,000; one $4,000; one $3,000; one $9,000; one $8,000; one $12,000; one $14,000; six $16,000; four $20,000; five $30,000; two $40,000. The names of twenty-five others are given, and it is stated that these and many others, whose names are not mentioned, have property ranging in value from three to twenty thousand dollars.

When we consider the oppressions and mighty obstacles to progress which these coloured people must encounter—the fact that they are, as far as possible, excluded from "equal rights to equal chance" (our whilome Citizen Farrell's motto) in trades and professions, this accumulation of wealth is astonishing. And these are the people of whom we, their oppressors, are accustomed to speak as "a worthless, vicious class, incapable of taking care of themselves."—[Vide Colonization Reports and pro-slavery arguments in all its iterations.] —Pitts. Dispatch.

Now the red pestilence strike all trades in Rome,
And occupations perish.—Cymbeline.

New York Merchants are menaced with the loss of Southern patronage. It is proposed to hold a Convention in Virginia to counsel Southern dealers to withhold their custom from certain New York houses suspected of "Free Soil" opinions. Very well. The sooner the better. Let the names of the firms to be proscribed for opinion's sake be published, and we guarantee that the influx of Northern and Western customers which will flow in upon them, will help them to rapid prosperity. It will be the best business advertisement that ever was devised. For every Southern customer who ceases to give them his note to be protested in ninety days, they will gain five Northern and Western ones, who will pay cash.

Proscription and prosecution seem to be as natural to slave holders as water is to a duck. They are never content with such justice as can be secured by the Law. They are always resorting to extrajudicial and unlawful modes of redress for their fancied wrongs. The consequence is they damage nobody so much as themselves.

They station armed Pilots at Norfolk to search Northern vessels for runaways. They have caught no runaways, but they have driven away much valuable trade. They imprison Northern seamen at Charleston and New Orleans to prevent their "tampering with the blacks." The consequence is that Northern seamen avoid Charleston and New Orleans, and folks there are holding Conventions to inquire what has become of their lost Commerce. They have undertaken to crush out a Free State party in Kansas by cannon instead of votes. The consequence is they have created a Free State party all over the Union. They threatened to hang men for talking about slavery. The consequence is that men ever since have hardly talked about anything else. They have suppressed the mention of Slavery in Southern pulpits. The consequence is that they have arrayed three of the most powerful Northern Churches on the side of Freedom. They tried to stop Mr. Sumner's speeches with a club. The consequence is that no man's speeches are this day so universally read and applauded as his. So it will be with their conspiracy against the New York Merchants. It will prove to be nothing more than an ingenious and successful method of picking their own pockets, and filling those of the New Yorkers.—Alb. Evening Journal.

Acknowledgments, from June 1 to July 1.

FOR STANDARD.

832	Rufus Reynolds, Stamford, Ct.	$2 00
832	James Brown, N. Y. City	50
887	R. L. Darragh, " "	2 00
834	E. O. Beale, " "	2 00
833	Thomas Sherwin, Dedham, Mass.	2 00
833	E. Quincy, " "	2 00
728	Eliza A. Rogers, N. Bellerica, Mass.	2 00
885	James Batcheller, Fitz William, N. H.	2 00
864	Female A. S. Society, Weymouth, Mass.	4 00
876	Mrs. Turner, Lentonfield, Eng.	3 00
861	L. M. Miles, Boston, Mass.	2 00
896	F. A. Ware, Franklin, Mass.	4 00
845	C. Donaldson, New Richmond, O.	6 00
884	Mrs. J. S. Hollinshead, Delavan, Wis.	2 00
836	Laura A. McKee, " "	1 00
884	Moses Kidder, Woodstock, Vt.	2 00
866	Walter Farrington, Wappinger's Falls, N. Y.	2 00
900	Mrs. Nancy Babcock, Boston, Mass.	2 00
858	A. Conger, Newark, N. J.	2 00
888	Jona Aiken, Patterson, N. Y.	4 00
884	Joseph Carpenter, Mamaroneck, N. Y.	2 00
804	Ladies' A. S. Sewing Circle, Cincinnati, O.	5 00
860	Rev. Frederick Frothingham, Portland, Me.	1 00
884	William A. Hall, Hastings, N. Y.	2 00
884	Miss De Peyster, North Shore, S. I.	2 00

DONATION.

E. Conger, Newark, N. J. $3 00

Pennsylvania Anti-Slavery Society.

Receipts for the Quarter ending June 30th, 1856.

T. B. Longstreth,	$15 00	Thomas Williamson,	$50 00
Isaac Ivins,	10 00	Mary Ann Shaw,	3 00
M. Wilson,	1 00	J. H. Cavender,	10 00
Simpson Preston,	5 00	David Ellis,	5 00
Seth Ely,	1 00	Sarah Pearson,	10 00
A Friend in Bucks Co.,	10 00	Evalina Supplee,	10 00
M. K. Taylor,	5 00	Joseph Fell,	1 00
J. Betts,	5 00	William Brown,	5 00
A. L. Twining,	5 00	A Friend,	10 00
Samuel Holcomb,	1 00	M. M. Moore,	10 00
Amos Ely,	1 00	George Dodd,	10 00
Collection,	6 25	J. Brown,	5 00
M. Atkinson,	16 00	A. T. James,	50
J. Mendenhall,	6 00	B. Rnhon,	1 00
J. P. Code,	10 00	W. J.,	100 00
Edward Webb,	10 00	Clayton Miller,	1 00
Sarah Beans,	5 00	Rachel Jones,	2 00
N. Thorne,	5 00	E. B. French,	2 50
John Palmer,	3 00	James Hoover,	20 00
A Friend in Berks Co.,	5 00	Milton Fussell,	5 00
Thomas Hopkins,	5 00	George Wright,	10 00
George Chapman,	10 00	Philadelphia Female A. S. Society,	100 00
Ann Preston,	5 00
Robert Purvis,	10 00

Sarah Pugh, Treasurer.

Special Notices.

☞ The Twenty-Third National Anti-Slavery Bazaar will be held, as usual, in BOSTON, during Christmas and New Year's Week. Time and place of opening to be decided hereafter.

The Anti-Slavery cause has at length, after a quarter of a century of labours, taken possession, in one form or another, of almost every mind in our American community. To men of great sympathies, it has shown the sufferings of the slave; to men of a profound sense of right, it has shown his wrongs; to men whose hope is in another life, it has shown him deprived of Bibles, and Sabbaths, and sanctuary privileges; to men whose hope is in this life, it has shown him deprived of education and the means of self-improvement and success. To patriots, it has shown their country's shame and danger. To politicians, it has shown one of the most selfish and accursed interest devouring every true one. To Christians, it has shown their Redeemer crucified afresh in the persons of these the least of his brethren. To philanthropists, it has shown human nature degraded and ruined in the person of both master and slave, by the outrages of the one against the liberty of the other.

The function of the undersigned, whose privilege, during all these years, it has been to give themselves to the work, has been to arouse their countrymen to the necessity of taking an onward and upward step with the advancing century. We print books, sustain newspapers, and send out agents, to disseminate truth, and to follow it up with argument, appeal, entreaty, with statements of facts on every department of the subject—theological, financial, political, social—in order to bring about the abolition of slavery.

The coming occasion of the TWENTY-THIRD BAZAAR, is for the purpose of raising funds to that effect; and we confidently call upon every compassionate, just, patriotic, Christian and philanthropic heart in the land for aid. Nay, we call on every heart, without exception; for the power and beauty of this Cause is shown in its faculty of changing the public heart into its own excellent likeness. But especially, let all who pity fugitives help us; for our funds go directly to awaken that public sympathy which gives the slave a refuge on every threshold. Especially, let all who wish to see Abolitionists in Congress, help us; for our funds go directly to arouse the sensibilities of every patriot, politician, statesman, legislator, elector. By our precept and example of No Union with Slaveholders, we lead the van of a national movement towards the abolition of slavery, which every profound thinker clearly sees would stop without such leading; and we especially beseech all to help us, as it is the only means whereby worthier and swifter than we can take the lead, which only the necessity of the case has bound upon us.

We solicit correspondence, counsel and assistance from all friends of the slave, whether at home or in Europe, and we pledge ourselves to employ most conscientiously whatever of influence or money may be committed to our hands, and to make faithful account of the same at the close of our undertaking.

Communications may be addressed to the Committee at 21 Cornhill, Boston, Mass., or to 138 Nassau street, New York.

Maria Weston Chapman,	Mary May,
Louisa Loring,	Eliza Lee Follen,
Anne Warren Weston,	Ann Greene Phillips,
Sarah Shaw Russell,	Frances Mary Robbins,
Helen E. Garrison,	Ann Rebecca Bramhall,
Sarah H. Southwick,	Mary Willey,
Abby Francis,	Ann Shaw Greene,
Amy M. Remond,	Mary Gray Chapman,
Elizabeth Gay,	Henrietta Sargent,
Sarah B. May,	Caroline Weston,
Susan C. Cabot,	Mary H. Jackson,
Sarah Blake Shaw,	Lydia D. Parker,
Eliza F. Eddy,	Evelina A. S. Smith,
Elizabeth Von Arnim,	Augusta King,

Eliza H. Apthorp.

Advertisements.

THE WATER-CURE JOURNAL

The Water-Cure Journal—devoted to Physiology, Hydropathy, and the Laws of Life and Health—with Engravings illustrating the Human System—A Guide to Health and Longevity. Published monthly, at $1 a year, by FOWLER AND WELLS, 308 Broadway, New York.

Good Health is our Great Want.—We can obtain it only by a knowledge of the Laws of Life and the Causes of Disease. All subjects connected with Diet, Exercise, Bathing, Cleanliness, Ventilation, Dwellings, Clothing, Occupation, &c., are clearly presented in the Water-Cure Journal. Hydropathy is fully explained and applied to all known diseases. Water-Cure is not equalled by any other mode of treatment in those complaints peculiar to Women. Particular directions are given for the treatment of ordinary cases at home, so that all may apply it. The Journal is designed for the "People." Believing Health to be the basis of all happiness, we rely on the friends of good Health to place a copy of The Water-Cure Journal in every family in the United States. Single Copy, $1 a year; Five Copies, $4; Ten Copies, $7. Now is the time to subscribe. Please address FOWLER and WELLS, 308 Broadway, New York.
4t

WOODWORTH'S YOUTH'S CABINET AND UNCLE FRANK'S DOLLAR MAGAZINE, EDITED BY FRANCIS C. WOODWORTH.

Now in the eleventh year of its publication, has long been acknowledged by the conductors of the public press, and others, whose judgment is entitled to credit, as the "best work of its class in the Union." It is the aim of the editor to make it acceptable to parents who desire to provide a pure literature for their families, free from those blots and blemishes which disfigure so many juvenile publications, and render their influence pernicious.

The magazine embraces 32 large octavo pages. Each number is elegantly and properly embellished with engravings. The articles are varied in their character, and consist of tales, sketches, travels, curiosities in nature and art, biographies of distinguished men and women, with portraits, fables, riddles, charades, enigmas, &c.

July begins a New Volume. Now is the time to subscribe. Back numbers from January (the first of an entirely New Series) can always be supplied.

Terms.—$1 a year; five copies to one address, $4; eight copies to one address, $6, and an extra copy to the getter up of the club of eight. Single numbers, 12 1-2 cents, or three stamps.

FOUNTAIN PENS GRATIS!

For $10 we will send 10 copies of the magazine one year, and one of Prince's Fountain Pens worth $4.

For $4 50, we will send the Cabinet one year, and one of the Fountain Pens.

Those who are unacquainted with Woodworth's Youth's Cabinet will please send for a specimen. Single copies only 12 1-2 cents.

Send in your subscriptions (or its equivalent in post-office stamps) to D. A. WOODWORTH, Publisher, 118 Nassau st., New York.

HOPEDALE HOME SCHOOL, FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH OF BOTH SEXES.
WILLIAM S. HAYWOOD, ABBIE S. HAYWOOD, } Principals.

This School, established in 1854 by W. L. and S. L. Bloom, under whose superintendence it has been eminently successful, will hereafter be conducted by the subscribers, who hope, with their attainments and past experience as Teachers, to prove themselves worthy of the confidence and patronage of their friends and the public generally. It is located in the pleasant and quiet Village of Hopedale, Milford, Mass., within two hours' ride of Boston, Worcester and Providence.

The design of this School is to educate in the highest and best sense of the term, and thereby so far fit those who may attend it for any useful and truly honourable calling in life as their purpose and facilities will allow. The course of study will be mainly elective, reference being had to the qualifications, tastes and intended pursuit in life of the pupil. Thoroughness rather than extent, quality rather than quantity, will be carefully regarded.

Particular attention will be given to the social, moral and religious influence exerted at all times upon those who may avail themselves of the privileges herein offered them. They will be trained to reverence truth, justice and mercy—to love God, as the Universal Father, and man, as the common brother—to observe the divine principles and practical duties of Christianity.

Physical health and comfort, so often neglected in Educational Institutions, will receive proper care. Caution and prevention for the well, and suitable helps and restoratives for the sick, will be faithfully administered.

The Discipline of the School is intended to be strict and impartial, but kind and parental. The pupils are to be received and treated as members of the family, and are expected to be subject to wholesome family government.

No pupils taken under seven years of age.

Parents and Guardians desirous of finding a pleasant and comfortable HOME for their children or wards while prosecuting their studies, where they will be well cared for, and kindly treated—where they will be removed from the evils and temptations of common society, and from the corrupting power of prevailing wickedness—where they will be nurtured in virtue, humanity and pure religion, will find here an unusually favourable opportunity of realizing their wishes.

EXPENSES.

For Tuition in common English branches, board and care, including washing, mending, &c., per Quarter of 12 weeks, [illegible].

For Tuition in higher English and Select Branches, Languages, Painting, Music, &c., an extra, but reasonable, charge will be made.

Text Books, Reference Books and Stationery furnished by the School, furnished without additional cost.

A Normal Department, for those purposing to teach, is contemplated.

A limited number of Day Scholars can be accommodated, subject to special arrangement.

The next (Summer) Term will commence on the Third Thursday (15th) of May.

For further information and particulars, see large Circular, to be obtained by addressing either of the Principals, Hopedale, Milford, Mass. WILLIAM S. HAYWOOD, ABBIE S. HAYWOOD.

April 15, 1856. [41]

ROUND HILL WATER-CURE AND MOTORPATHIC INSTITUTE, NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

In all the local advantages which render attractive an Institution for Invalids, and a Summer Retreat for others, seeking relaxation and pleasure, this stands alone and unrivalled. It is surrounded on two sides by forty acres of forest park, which affords a grateful shade during the warm months and protection from the winds in Winter. The water is supplied in great abundance from living mountain springs, and is noted for its great purity. The Bathing facilities have just been thoroughly remodelled and greatly enlarged. They now embrace every modern improvement for the medical application of water, which is used in a thorough and scientific manner.

Dr. H. Halsted, the proprietor (formerly of Rochester, N. Y.), continues to pay particular attention to Woman's diseases and weaknesses. The success which has attended his method of treating such complaints by his system of Motorpathy has given him a wide and extended practice. He makes no use of artificial supports. His system is founded on new pathological principles, and by it permanent cures are effected with an ease and certainty heretofore unattained by any system of Therapeutics.

He also devotes himself to the cure of all the various kinds of Chronic Diseases. Having been for twenty years at the head of a Hydropathic Institution, and during that time, having treated many of the most complicated cases, he has had an opportunity few have enjoyed of acquiring skill in the cure of protracted and difficult complaints.

There is a Gymnasium, Billiard Room and Bowling Alley for the use of guests and patients. Gymnastic and Calisthenic exercises are of the utmost importance for the expansion, development and healthy action of the lungs and various other organs, and are considered indispensable. Many modes are used to excite bodily and organic action, and thus to equalize the circulation, and to aid the secreting vessels without incurring the baneful reactive effects of powerful and injurious drugs.

One of Vergnes's Electro-Chemical Baths, for extracting all metallic substances, whether taken as medicine or otherwise absorbed, has also been obtained, and is in successful operation.

Circulars sent free to any address on application; "Exposition of Motorpathy," postage free on receipt of ten letter stamps; and "Motion—Life," on receipt of six.

Address H. HALSTED, M.D., Northampton, Mass.

April, 1856. 3m.

THE CHRISTIAN EXAMINER AND RELIGIOUS MISCELLANY. EDITED BY REV. GEO. E. ELLIS.

"The Christian Examiner" is the title which was given in 1824 to a bi-monthly publication which was essentially the continuation of a series of periodical works of the same general design commenced in 1805—half a century ago. [illegible]

PROCEEDINGS of the PENNSYLVANIA YEARLY MEETING OF PROGRESSIVE FRIENDS, for 1856—a pamphlet of 84 pages—just published, and for sale at the Anti-Slavery Offices in New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

CONTENTS.

Minutes of the Meeting. Exposition of Sentiments. Testimonies of the Society—Amusements—Slavery—Woman's Rights—Tobacco—Temperance—Treatment of Criminals—First-day Meetings. Sermon, by Samuel J. May. Correspondence—Embracing letters from L. Maria Child, Charles K. Whipple, Wm. Lloyd Garrison, O. B. Frothingham, Samuel Longfellow, Gerrit Smith, Moncure D. Conway, Robert Hassall, and others.

Price 15 cents single; 8 copies $1; 18 copies $2.

A. J. GROVER, COUNSELLOR AT LAW—LAND AND COLLECTING AGENCY. EARLVILLE, Lasalle County, Illinois.
REFER TO
Cornelius Bramhall, 188 Fulton street, O. R. Potter & Co., 189 Broadway, cor. Courtland st., Rushmore, Cone & Co., 15 Warren street, } New York.
Hunt & Lane, Congress street, Abner Curtis, Pearl street, } Boston.
N.B. Particular attention paid to collecting for Eastern Merchants, looking up titles to Lands, paying Taxes, buying and selling Lands, &c. &c.

HOPEDALE HOME SCHOOL.—This Institution, located in the quiet village of Hopedale, in the midst of a pure moral and social atmosphere, will enter upon its third year of existence and Progressive usefulness, its Summer Term commencing on Thursday, July 24th. Particulars may be obtained by addressing either of the Principals, at Hopedale, Milford, Massachusetts.
WILLIAM S. HAYWOOD, ABBIE S. HAYWOOD, } Principals.
Hopedale, Mass, June 25, 1856. 4t

BRAMHALL, BONNELL & RICHMOND, IMPORTERS AND JOBBERS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS, No. 188 Fulton, opposite Church street, ... New York.
Cornelius Bramhall, Joseph A. Bonnell, Charles Richmond, Jr.
1y

EAGLESWOOD SCHOOL, Perth Amboy, N. J. For particulars, address THEODORE D. WELD, Principal.

ISAAC NEWTON.

NEWTON AND THE BLACK ART.

"He very rarely went to bed till two or three of the clock; sometimes not till five or six—lying about four or five hours; especially at Spring and Fall of the leaf, at which times he used to comply about six weeks in his laboratory, the fire scarcely going out either night or day—he sitting up one night after another, till he had finished his chemical experiments, in the performance of which he was the most accurate, strict, exact. What his aim might be I was not able to penetrate into; but his chief design seemed to be the search after the philosophic stone and the universal medicine, which he seemed to have formed a good hope of finding out by the force of human art and industry. On the left end of the garden was his laboratory, near the east end of the chapel, where he at these set times employed himself with a great deal of satisfaction and delight. Nothing extraordinary was ever remembered to be made by his experiments; which if he did, he was of so sedate and even temper, that I could not in the least discover it.

About six weeks at Spring and six at Fall the fire in the laboratory scarcely went out, which was well furnished with chemical materials, as bodys, receivers, heads, crucibles, &c., which was made very little use of—the crucibles excepted, in which he fused his metals. He would sometimes, though very seldom, desire the help of an old man in the laboratory. I think it mostly hook, and his name was Agricolo de Metallis"; the transmuting of metals being his chief design. For which purposes antimony was a great ingredient. His brick furnaces, pro re nata, he made and altered himself, without troubling a bricklayer.

The surmises of his simple-minded assistant were undoubtedly correct; and we have a somewhat new light thrown on Newton's turn of mind, when we learn that he was vastly devoted to Alchemy. Indeed if his honest amanuensis has correctly reported the matter of the grubby pasteboard box. we should be inclined to believe he had really succeeded in the occult art; since it is difficult to imagine from what possible source he could have amassed such a sum. Be this as it may, the testimony to his alchemical tendencies rests on other authority than that of honest Humphrey's mere surmises. We are at least certain that he had largely studied the subject; and if he expresses himself sometimes with caution, or even doubt, this must be viewed as mere prudent reticence, which reserve on a subject on which he was doubtless unwilling to avow the extent of his convictions or expectations.

In his letter of advice to Mr. Aston on his travels, Newton exhorts him to inquire particularly into anything he can learn about the transformation of metals; which he says are "the most luciferous, and many times luciferous experiments too, in philosophy." And he also expresses a peculiar interest respecting one Bory, in Holland, a noted alchemist, who, he thinks, possesses important secrets.

At a subsequent period Boyle, who had been engaged in similar pursuits, communicated to Newton and other friends the discovery of a certain "red earth," which, by combination with mercury, was multiply gold. A specimen of it was sent to Newton, who at first seemed to doubt, yet intimates an intention of shortly trying it, "though the success seems improbable." He afterwards hints that Boyle had not communicated the full secret of his new knowledge, though I knew more of it than he has told me." On another occasion Boyle communicated other experiments, which Newton says, "he cumbered with such circumstances as startled me, and made me afraid of any more."

Mr. Law states that he found among Sir Isaac's papers large extracts out of Jacob Behmen, from whose writings he had been led to search for "the philosopher's tincture"; and that that this was the object of the chemical researches he prosecuted in conjunction with his relative Dr. Newton.

Sir D. Brewster has seen, in Newton's hand-writing, copies and extracts of several alchemical works, such as John de Rupecissa's "Vade Mecum," a treatise on "Salt," Norton's "Ordinal" and Basil Valentine's "Mystery of the Microcosm," and others: also a copy of the "Secrets Revealed, or an Open Entrance to the Shut Palace of the King," covered with MS. notes in Sir Isaac's hand, and suggested experiments; and, lastly, a large folio MS., a small work, an original of his own, as we are led to suppose, entitled "Thesaurus Thesaurorum, sive Medecina Aurea"; together with innumerable note books and detached MS. papers, containing an infinity of extracts, and remarks on all sorts of subjects, and a great deal of "index Chemicus," with a supplement of extensive references to writings and authorities. This, then, seems to have been the absorbing passion of his life, at least about the period of which we are speaking. Engaged in such an engrossing pursuit he could easily dismiss the fluxion of gravitation; and with the glowing vision of the philosopher's stone before his eyes, was blind to all prospects of sublunary fame or distinction, and desired nothing in life but the peaceful leisure in which he could devote his whole attention to the prosecution of the grand object of his unremitted enjoyment of the pursuit of the grand arcanum."

THE DOG-STORY A FICTION.

It is not without some reference to th same questions that we may now advert to an incident on which a great deal more has been said than it deserves. On the statement of Mr. Conduitt after a conversation with Newton himself, we have the explicit assurance that the dog Diamond really left a candle on his table among some papers, by which they were burnt. Some of these related to optics and some to fluxions; and if he was obliged to work them all over again, the loss was not very serious, nor did it materially affect him. This we may take to be the simple truth, and real basis of what has been dressed up in many fabulous forms and connected with other events with which it really had not the least relation. Dr. Stukeley has told us that Newton himself related to him "explaining the principles of that mysterious art upon experimental and mathematical proof; and he valued it much; but it was unluckily hinged in his laboratory, which casually took fire. He would never undertake that work again, and he was not prepossessed with anything Newton alludes to a report existing of some such loss having been occasioned by fire, but says that if it occurred, it was before his time. Every one has heard that version of the story which comprises the rather apocryphal little dog "Diamond"; while Fatio de Duillier has added to the fabulous train of the imperturbability of his master. Humphrey tells us that he "kept neither dog nor cat in his chamber." The story is in other respects embellished in the version of Dr. De la Condamine. Whose diary it is however entered only as what "he has heard" from Mr. Pilkington, and the dog is not named at all. Voltaire, Professor Sturm writes from Altorf, that a rumour had reached that place from Newton's house and all his goods were burnt, and himself so disturbed in mind as to be reduced to very ill circumstances."

NEWTON'S DERANGEMENT.

The story of Newton's derangement in 1692–3 was for the first time generally heard of by the English reading public in 1822, when M. Biot published his life, in which he professed to derive this fact from the explicit statement of a contemporary Journal of Huyghens, then first brought to light; in which Newton is mentioned on the same authority of one Colin, a Scotchman, who visited Huygheus soon after the alleged occurrence. The cause assigned was either "too intense application to study, or excessive grief from having lost by fire his chemical laboratory and several manuscripts." Biot had seen the papers, from what we have already observed, had no connection whatever with any illness. But it is exceedingly probable that too intense application to study, and especially the intense thinking the lunar theory, which "made his head ache," had so far exhausted Newton's nervous system as to bring on a state of ill health into which he had undoubtedly fallen during a part of 1692 and 1693. And that this illness was of a kind which immediately shook his nerves, and to a certain extent disturbed the coherent exercise of his mental faculties upon which he subjected himself and all doubt by the testimony of his own letters. That it is painful to witness so exalted a mind, even for a time, prostrated by the influence of bodily organization, is no reason for shutting our eyes to facts, and taking from the credit of Newton at stake if we admit that he could ever have exhibited transient marks of incoherence or weakness.

The letters alluded to are not new to the reading public; they are cited in support of what we have said, briefly refer to refer to those in the first is addressed to Pepys, dated September 13th, 1693 :

"Sir: Sometime after Mr. Millington had delivered your message he pressed me to see you the next time I came to London. I was ma se but, upon his pressing, consented; and considering that I had put you to trouble, I resolved to take that opportunity of telling you that I was truely troubled at the unbecomment I ma in, and have neither slept well this twelvemonth, nor have my former consistency of mind. I never designed to get anything by your interest, nor by King James's favour; but am now sensible that I have been undermined by some pretenders, and see neither you nor the rest of my friends any more, if I may but know them quietly. I beg your pardon for what I would see you again; and rest your most humble and obedient servant, Is. Newton."

Pepys was naturally startled at such a letter, and immediately in much alarm wrote to Dr. Gregory and Fred Millington, who in answer says, that he has had an interview with Newton :

"He told me he had writ to you a very odd letter, at which he was much concerned; added that it was in a distemper that much seized his head, and that kept him awake for above five nights together; which, upon occasion, he desired you would represent to you, and her your pardon; he being very much ashamed he should be so rude to a person for whom he hath so great a respect. He is now very well, and, though I fear he is under some small degree of melancholy, yet I think there is no reason to suspect it hath at all touched his understanding, and I hope never will."

What he had said or done with reference to Locke seems to have been extraordinary and inexplicable. Whatever it was, he not long after gave a most touching instance of contrition, coupled with a melancholy exposure of some of the aberrations into which he had been led with respect to his friend.

Thus he writes to Locke :

"Sept. 16th, 1693.

"Sir: Being of opinion that you endeavored to engage me both with women and in the study of mathematics, when I was vexed with your printed book, I was so much affected with it as that when one told me that you were sickly and would not live, I answered, "twere better if you were dead." I desire you to forgive this uncharitableness, for I am now satisfied that what you have done is justifiable and I beg your pardon for my having hard thoughts of you for it; and for representing that you stenck at the root of morality, in a principle you laid in your book of ideas, and designed to pursue in another book, which, as you took you for a falsehood. I beg your pardon also for saying or thinking that there was a design to sell me an office, or to embroil me.

"I am your most humble and unfortunate servant,

"Is. Newton."

Locke's answer displays all the generous kindness and sympathy which might be expected from his excellent nature, and Newton again in his reply to Locke explains the cause of his apparent incoherency, and the delusion under which he labored :

"Sir: The last Winter, by sleeping too often by my fire, I got an ill habit of sleeping; and a distemper, which this occasioned, put me into a method of walking in my sleep, consequently only in her sixteenth year when Newton received his first appointment to the Mint. Newton commenced residence in London (as we have seen) in 1697. At some period after this—how soon precisely we are not informed—he received his poor but beautiful niece into his house and invested her with the entire superintendence of his domestic affairs.

Miss Barton was clearly a very extraordinary woman. We know no particulars of her education, and we cannot suppose it to have been above the average of those days. She must, however, have profited by it in no ordinary degree, aided by native talent of a peculiar kind; for she was no second Bel her grinding at her mole parties than men of all grades and pursuits were fascinated as much by her talents and conversation as by her personal charms. She could converse equally well with philosophers and statesmen, men of the world and retired students; she could flirt with the gay part of the town, or gravese; she could talk fashionable scandal with Lady Betty Germaine, politics with Swift, and science with Brook Taylor, Dr. Moivre and Montmort.

Her letters to Mrs. Catherine Barton contains a series of entries of his repeated visits to Mrs. Catherine Barton which evince the admiration she inspired. He seems to have prided himself on dining with her alone more than once; yet he complains that "he loves her better than any one here, and therefore seldom sees her." She grieves his studies and changes his manner of living; for the sake of getting into her company, he moves his lodgings to be nearer to hers. On one occasion, "we were three hours together discoursing of Whig and Tory." On another, "I have been so teased with Higgins discovering by Mrs. Barton and Lady Betty Germaine—never saw the like." At a much later date, a letter from her to Swift is of itself a model of its kind.

Among the many who frequented Newton's house, Lord Halifax could not resist the effect of her charms, though probably long after the period imagined by Voltaire. Of the precise extent of his admiration nothing is recorded. But in his will he left her all his jewels, £5,000 with a considerable sum in addition, during the life of Newton, and Lodge of Bushy Park, and the manor of Apercort: "these gifts and legacies," he adds, "I leave her as a token of the sincere love, affection and esteem, I have long had for her person, and as a small recompense for the pleasure I have received in her friendship and conversation."

Mr. Conduitt, describing Newton's personal appearance in the latter part of his life, says, he had a "comely and gracious aspect," and "a very lively and piercing eye." Bishop Atterbury, however, thought, that "in the whole air of his face and make there was nothing of that penetrating sagacity which appears in his compositions: he had something of the countenance of a plain, honest, which did not raise any great expectation in those who did not know him"; which is confirmed by the testimony of Hearne, the antiquary, who says, "he was a man of no very promising aspect." He spoke little in company; so that his conversation was not agreeable, and if he was rode in his coach, one arm would be out of his coach on the one one side and the other on the other." But this last peculiarity is strangely interpreted by Arago (in his Eloge) into "absence of mind," a proof of his timidity and the continual fear of being upset.

The numerous instances of his pecuniary liberality to his relations and others who stood in need of it, are not fairly to be disparaged by the fact that he was notoriously penurious in his habits, and left a large property behind him on record. He had once been imposed upon in the purchase of an estate, and when told that he might vacate the bargain in equity, he replied, " that he would not for the sake of £2,000 go into Westminster Hall to tell that he had been cheated all his life."

He one day missed bank hills to the amount of £3,000, and suspected that his pocket had been picked by the graceless nephew of his friend Whitson, who had bought an estate at that price without any ostensible means of payment. He "did not speak to him about it, but set people to watch and search Conduitt asked him how much he had lost, he only answered "

When he was attended by the eminent surgeon Cheselden, he took out of his coat pocket a handful of guineas and offered them as a fee, and on Cheselden's remonstrating, he only said, laughing, "suppose I do give you more than your fee." Being told that Dr. Cheyne had written an ingenious book on mathematics, but had not money to print it, he sent him a bag of money, which he refused, and "Newton would see him no more."

We have gone to too great length in the details of Newton's personal history and private life to allow room for more than a brief notice of the recorded general remarks. While we do not uphold him as a model of moral as well as of intellectual excellence, we can by no means assent to the assertion that he was destitute of common good feelings. We cannot agree to a parallel which has been drawn between Dante and Newton as similar instances of transcendent intellectual greatness united with the lowest moral meanness. We cannot admit, as has been said by a recent critic, that his was "iron intellect sea-rounding a moral vacuum." We do not believe, on the other hand, that he was all generosity, benevolence and patience. He was imperturbable when there was nothing to imperturb him; but once thrown off his equilibrium he had little self-control, and became often irritable, sometimes intemperate. But he could be also generous, forgiving and dangerous, and he was always transparently honest and incorruptibly pure. The truth is, that his intellect, which had most deeply sounded and explored the mysteries of external nature was at times perplexed and obscured by the mysteries and infirmities of its own constitution, and in embracing the system of the universe Newton at times lost possession of himself.—Edinburgh Review.

A VAST deal of genial humour, says Mrs. Stowe, is conscientiously strangled in religious people, which might illuminate and warm the way of life. Wit and gaiety answer the same purpose that a fire does in a damp house, dispersing dullness and drying up mold and making all wholesome and cheerful.

We crowd down to t — before the great and silent hoat has glided to her wharf, and find ourselves surrounded by merchandise, in endless tiers of clean white boxes of fresh deal, and horses tied up with their heads interspersed with the dusky, sorrowful Irish mothers and babies have contrived to snuggle themselves into berths they have contrived amongst the rows of bales and boxes! Mixed in with them are negroes and mulattoes —second-class accommodations being especially intended for the Irish emigrant. Their passage is cheap and the Irish is intense; as well it may be, upon their part, for the Irish immigration has entirely changed their position and prospects in the free States. Every ship-load of these Celtic immigrants helps to raise the wages and terms of this unhappy race of the means of getting work and living; and wherever the occasion offers, the Irish are top dog. They raise a row and come to fisticuffs with the "negurs." The present Know-Nothing movement, which is excluding the Irish at all events from any share in the public offices, even of the lowest kinds, is to the advantage of the opponents of the Fugitive Slave law. A United States Marshal in the New England States would run a better chance of bringing his victim down if he hunted with a pack of Irish hounds than with any pack of negroes. The negroes have decidedly the advantage over the Irish in their habits, and general consideration, the scorn with which they look on there as "white trash," is exceedingly amusing. He is the being less seen in the free States, where social advantages are concerned, than the Irish porpentation. We were walking up a hilly street in New York some time after our arrival, when a party of little mulatto boys coming out of school were engaged in blackguarding each other; every length used as epithet to which, for a moment, his adversary could find no bad word strong enough to reply; when, trembling with rage, he shook his fist in his opponent's face, and stammered out, "Yon —you Irish nigger you!"

Our reflections on the history of the United States are broken in upon by the captain of the boat, who knocks at our doors which have kept us closely penned like travellers waiting in a French railway station, and the passengers for Newport pour forth by the light of a few lanterns carried la laid upon our shoulder as we step from the gangway.

"My name is Pennifeather—what's yourn?" says a rough voice, not unkindly.

Just fresh from England, and perfect strangers to Newport and its population, we are a little startled by this stand-and-deliver demand on our personality.

"Really," we say, with English hesitation, "you don't know why you want our name."

"Wal, now!" says Pennifeather, putting his arms a-kimbo, "if's an outlandish name, you know. Only I was Miss Archer's relative that she's bin speerin' ont for these two weeks, and if these here is your folks and luggage, she said you was to git into my coach and let me drive you."

Inimitable doctor! Prince of all hack-drivers!—dressed in a fancy waistcoat; in warm weather seldom covered by a coat, but gay with massy chain and turquoise studs! If the doctor does not wear a coat he changes nothing in his personality. He visits in it when he comes to be paid, and sits on the best chair in your drawing room. Honest and kindly! good to man and beast—with a vein of Yankee humour which Haliburton would find it pay! to spend a season here and study; the doctor is one of the originals of his tales. His ordinary practice gives him his handle to his name, but that he is modest about assuming it is proved by a series of new cards that have been printed of late—" W. C. Pennifeather (surgeon)."

As we ride up the hill on which the town, mostly of wood, is built, passing through Washington Square, and past the quaint, respectable old Court-house, where Washington gave audience, and where a portrait of him which he sat to the artist is preserved, we turn off up the hill time by giving you a few anecdotes of our coachman, which will give you a better idea than any formal description, of the state of manners in this little town. This evening, when the boat comes in from Providence, the doctor will be standing by, and hailing the driver of the the principal inhabitants—acquaintances of our good kinswoman—whom he sees aboard, will sing out, long before she reaches her wharf, "Mr. Smith!—Miss Partington!—Miss Archer! I'll be come! I drive 'em up as soon as they stepped on shore this evenin'."

"Mr. Pennifeather, your bill is wrong," we shall remark, on some future day of settling old scores.

"Wal—make it right yourself then. You is folks that I can trust, and I'm not a-going to worrit and makin' out a bill agin you. I have got to keep a pretty sharp look-out on some of the hotel folks though."

Some day during the heat of Summer a head and a hat will be poked through the shrubbery into the window of your drawing-room. "Say, you're not to home, I'm sure, that you can't have that carry : all you sent for this afternoon—'cos I ain't got a hos that's fit for a gal to drive." And with a strong aroma of cigar smoke left behind to testify the visit, the conscientious draws his head out of the room.

We were telling our kinswoman of our meeting with him on the wharf, and she gave us, as we now are giving to the reader, a good many characteristic anecdotes which we spared out of our own stock, as we have already stumbled upon. Coming one day from Providence, and seized, as usual, on the wharf by the doctor, always on the look-out for unprotected females (gentlemen and the ladies of their families leaves to his subordinate hack-drivers), she was handed into a stage with a number of strangers, among people in one corner. The gentle lady endured it for some moments, and then, beckoning to the doctor, said, unwilling to hurt the feelings of the people in whose company she was travelling, "I say, doctor, I think, as it is coming on to rain, I had rather have a closer carriage—can't you find me one ?"

"I reckon I can," said Pennifeather, letting down the steps with an iron clang. " And you're about right about the weather, I guess; you'll get wet to the skin folks to jail, and leave 'em there, afore I drive you home."

Our last anecdote of Pennifeather—last too in point of time, for it happened not long since—is a very characteristic one.

Miss Archer says, Dr. Pennifeather," said our servant. "that the last time you sent her a carriage the driver had an old dirty checked coat, and a Scotch cap, while the carriage and horses were handsome enough ; and that she cannot drive with such a shabby-looking coachman you must send her a gentleman."

"Wal now," said the Doctor, "tell Miss Archer I'll do my best. But I don't know as I've got a man that's got a black hat and a blue coat. My men ain't got no taste in dress—and that's a fact !—I often tell 'em so !"—Article de in Bentley's Miscellany.

HANGING IN THE LAST CENTURY.

We have already seen how Dodd, in his "Thoughts on Death," interrupted the meditations of Shadrach under this mask of quotation. He also published the "Beauties of Shakspeare," and at length resolved upon bringing out an entirely new edition of the plays of his idolized author. As this work would have involved an outlay of thousands of pounds, the doctor's exchequer was totally unable to meet the demand, and he was soon plunged into debt to the amount of some hundreds, he was lured by this petty ambition, perhaps not unmingled with the hope of a successful commercial speculation by which to relieve his fortunes, into the commission of the crime which ultimately brought him to the untimely tragedy. Presuming upon the affection of Philip Stanhope, now Earl Chesterfield, for his former tutor, he forged upon that nobleman a bond for £4,200, upon which, after certain repulses by equivocating agents, he at length called upon the personal security without a personal interview with the borrower, he at length succeeded in raising the required amount. A day or two after, one of the solicitors employed remarked upon the face of the instrument a peculiarity in the signature which aroused his suspicions. An accident than by design. Inquiries were at once instituted and the fraud discovered. The terrified culprit immediately restored the whole amount received, except £300 with which he had liquidated his previous liabilities, but for which the bond agreement, immediately carried into execution upon his furniture.

With this reparation, justice, tempered with common humanity, might and ought to have been satisfied. There is a common tradition, which I have been unable to trace, that the Lord Mayor presented a petition in favour of the unhappy culprit, but could not succeed in getting his name into the body of the petition. His virtuous wife, whose only crime was that of following the fortunes of her husband, presented a petition to the King from the city of London (Johnson afterwards said significantly, "they mended it"), a petition from Mrs. Dodd to the Queen, observations for the newspapers upon the case, a sermon preached in the chapel of the king's-bench prison, and a last dying speech left by the doctor, also as his own, in the hands of the Sheriff of Tyburn. It is melancholy to see that the last words of this misguided man were in effect a moral fraud. By these literary impostures he endeavored to hide his real author. himself so great and true, become a party, that, although he descended to evasion in order to conceal the fact best in his right impose Dodd during life, he eagerly avowed it when after the catastrophe he could benefit by it. Some of the inevitable suspicion which any emanation from Johnson ascribed to Dodd must necessarily excite. One passage in the last address shows the estimation in which the real writer held the false. Johnson wrote, "My life now, my friends, is of little consequence, and all the regret I have for parting with it is the sorrow it will give to my dear wife and family, after his connection with me." Dodd altered the last expression into "dreadfully erroneous." He could not charge himself with hypocrisy; and, indeed, his faults, such as they were, had scarcely included an effort at concealment.

Nearly 30,000 people petitioned to spare the life of Dodd, and these included many charities to which he had been a liberal benefactor—for, whatever his failings, ingardliness and uncharitableness formed certainly no portion of them. But the law must take its course. The sentence was pronounced, the two Perreaus (alluding to two previous victims) have been murdered." The force of royal logic, which thus sought to justify one act by another totally independent and ex post facto, will perhaps be at present scarcely appreciated.

I wonder whether amid his prison thoughts there was one, which the unhappy man has certainly not given to the world in his book respecting one William Griffiths, executed a few years before for robbing on the King's highway; and whether he concerned himself at all when he lamented the merciless nature of a Chesterfield. that a wretch had not long been hanged upon the ready testimony of a minister of that religion whose essence is mercy. Did Dodd never for one moment feel that a miserable thief might possibly, after his conviction, undergo much mental anguish in the anticipation of a felon's end, as an erring doctor of laws? And amid the various scriptural quotations with which every emanation from his pen was so profusely garnished, did he never call to mind the words, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy"; "Judge not lest ye be judged"; "For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged, and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again."

Meanwhile the unfortunate convict, at length resigned to his doom, dreaded even the pain of death more than personal ignominy, and the fearful scandal which his end would bring upon the cause of religion less than awful horrors of the horrible gibbet, than the staring crowds, the triumphant infidel ruffianism, and the brutal jeers upon his cloth. His mind dwelt upon Nokes calling to Styles to "see the two parsons together, one on 'em taking t'other to be hung"; and upon the jokings attending the execution of Dr. Dodd were warmest in his cause. It was not for mere sympathy with the man that Johnson devoted his powers to save the culprit. Johnson never believed in him. Long after, when the "Prison thoughts" were put into the hands of the public, he could not refrain from hints to the prayer for the King, which concludes the book, "What evidence is there that this was composed the night before he suffered? I do not believe it. Sir, do you think that a man the night before he is to be executed can pray for the welfare of a family? Though he may have composed this prayer then. A man who has been canting all his life, may cant to the last."

In the 27th June, 1777, two miserable criminals set forth on the dismal ride from Newgate to Tyburn. One of those was a wretched thief named Harris, who rode accompanied by a sobbing heart-broken man, his father, in the ordinary cart. But the sympathy expressed for him was of little account when compared with the other culprit, who, more dignified, and better able to excite consideration, was indulged with a mourning coach. The mob proved to be not the mob the unhappy doctor had shuddered to anticipate. Nokes and Styles were there, and hundreds of gilting, sorrowful lovely in their rude way, and uttered only prayers and blessings, instead of coarse and scurrile jeats.

On arrival at the fatal spot, Dodd, after a few minutes' prayer, whispered a few words to the executioner, and then turned round to pass, with the most profound decorum, dent, for as the cart drove on, down leapt the functionary and put the doctor out of pain by a violent pull at his legs. As for the wretched Harris, who could not afford to purchase such luxuries, he was left to struggle out his own life, and to be best could.—Article on Dr. Dodd, in "The Train."

Gleanings from Foreign Publications.

Probably no writer, says the Critic, ever gained so much money by his works as the author of "Pickwick." Not only does he possess the copyright of his copyrights (a great fortune in themselves), but he reaps abundantly from foreign fields where no other author can glean a straw. Whether it be for very shame, or that he may have the credit of paying one great English author, we cannot tell; but even Harper disburses hard dollars to Mr. Dickens. Tauchnitz of Leipzig pays him, we believe, £300 per annum. Then there is his current work "Little Dorrit," for which he receives in "Household Words"—a property of itself not to be despised.

—LOWELL, THE POET.—The Italian correspondent of the London Critic thus refers to James Russell Lowell in a recent letter :

"Among the most distinguished strangers in Rome, I have also met on a recent occasion, the American poet, Lowell, whose powers of thought and expression will be duly recognized for ages to come. A fine countenance, a diminutive and almost boyish figure, and a tone of soafflicted, thoughtful good sense in conversation, distinguish Mr. Lowell from all other writers. He will now be making a brief tour in Europe for the last time before devoting himself to his duties as Professor of Literature at the University at Boston."

—MINERALS VS. PLANTS.—Some minerals, which are interwoven with the living structure of the plant, are taken up into the fabric of the animal. And, to us, they are as important as to the meanest vegetable that grows. I, myself, have a bony head and a flinty heart. But lime strengthens my bones ; iron flows in my blood ; flint bristles in my hair ; sulphur and phosphorus quiver in my flesh. To the human frame the earth moves, the metal flows, and all the materials of the earth, attached by the divine power of vitality from the realms of inertia, live and move, and form part of a soul-tenanted frame. In the very ecstasy of humanity I am but earthy, and I glory with earthly mineral matter, which Descartes did not scruple, with a crude scientific impiety, to assign as the residence of the soul. You could no more have lived without the flinty particles of silex and fluorine than of potash, and sodium, and magnesium, than wheat can flourish without phosphorus, grass without silica, cress without iodine, or clover without lime. We are all of us indeed of the earth, earthy.—Dickens's Household Words.

—Mr. Augustin Thierry, the historian, has just died at Paris, aged sixty-one years. He was the author of "The Conquest of England by the Normans," "Letters on the History of France," "The Narrative of the Merovingian Time," &c. For the last twenty years Baron Gobert's annual prize of 10,000fr. for history has been awarded to him. He was also a member of the Institute of Sciences and Belles Lettres, but he declined standing for the Academie Francaise, because his election would have disqualified him for the Gobert prize. For the last twenty years Mr. Thierry has been blind, and has dictated all his works. The loss of his sight was brought on by intense labour in his historic pursuits. He lately wrote in reference to his infirmities : "I am blind, but resigned to it. I would do what I have done. Blind and suffering, without hope, and almost without intermission, I can bear impartial witness that there is something in this life which gives value than mere existence. That is, my fortune, better than health itself, and that in devotion to knowledge.

—STRETCHING.—It was in 1818 that strychine was extracted, by Pelletier and Caventou, from vomic nux. Strychnine is a vegetable alkali ; it is a constituent of St. Ignatius's beans, the seed of a tree indigenous of the Philippine Islands ; of the nux vomica, a native of Asia ; and of the upas tree, the natives imagining that they possess the power of preserving them from the bites of serpents), and of the shrub Upas Tieute, or Tieltek, of Java. Criminals are executed in Java by the poison of the upas tree, and when wounded tremble violently, utter fearful cries, and perish in horrible convulsions in ten or fifteen minutes. Strychnine, or crystalline substance, and the "nux vomise' shops is usually sold in form of powder. It is colourless, but its taste is so intensely bitter as to be perceptible when one part is diluted into a million parts of water. Even the dust of the powder is said to hurt vomica. Dr. Christison says the sixth part of a grain injected into the chest of a dog killed it in two minutes. A wild boar was killed in the same manner with the third part of a grain. Orfila says that a quarter of a grain blown into the mouth of a dog produced effect in five minutes." As regards antidotes, laurel water, tannin and infusion of lodine have been found effective. Lard has also been recommended.—The American Journal of Science, October, 1856, as a most satisfactory remedy. In nine instances in which lard was given to dogs who had taken strychnine, it did not die ; in eleven, where no lard was given, all died ; half a grain was sufficient to produce death, but three grains failed when lard was used.—Household Words.

—The Rev. James Sonnerat's interesting pamphlet has just been published by Mr. Bellaish of Stamford Hill, on Seinde, containing an account of his examinations and discoveries on the site of the ancient city of Brahminabad, on a branch of the old bed of the Indus. Tradition affirms that the city—the capital of a Hindoo kingdom to which the tide of Mahomedan invasion had scarcely penetrated—was destroyed by fire from heaven and by earthquake. On account of the wickedness of its rulers. The investigations of Mr. Bellasis seems to prove that the place really was destroyed by some terrible convulsion of nature, which probably at the same time completely changed the course of the Indus. On no other supposition can a ruin be accounted for that was at once so sudden and so complete. Skeletons were found in every house that was opened and in the streets, some of them those who are asleep, and invite them to draw their faces again into the feathers, in order not to be caught by the sun and hoisted into the air with the covering. The moose swarm of negroes is thrown into the sea of dirty feathers, and instantly disappear into their miserable rags, preparatory to gathering up their scattered property about the various quarters, and town to seek by lawful or unlawful means their means of subsistence.—Ihue's Chinese Empire.

NEW ENGLAND MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.
Incorporated 1835.
Branch Office in Metropolitan Building, 116 Broadway, New York City.
CAPITAL and accumulation of PREMIUMS to meet Death Claims, Endowments, &c., $1,500,000.
Annual Dividends, applying all business of the Company, in cash (not in scrip) to the payment of premiums, amounting to $150,000.
The entire profits are divided among all the members, IN CASH, and not credited with the unnecessary and uncertain liabilities of a distant future, thus avoiding the embarrassment and uncertainty attending a certain and good rate of interest, and the accumulation of large sums of money, which, in the course of years, become a temptation to the policy holder to withdraw from the Company, and thus lose the benefit of the accumulations. This plan has been found to work well, and is the most successful.
Insurants may be effected for the benefit of married women independent of their husbands' creditors. Creditors cannot reach the policy, nor any of the proceeds thereof, for the benefit of debtors.
Apply at the office, or by letter, for blank forms of application for insurance, or the Company's pamphlet, containing the charter, rules and regulations, and other information, which will be furnished gratis.
WILLARD PHILLIPS, President.
ELIZA L. S. THOMAS, M.D.,
PRACTICING PHYSICIAN,
No. 119 North Seventh street, between Wood and Callowhill,
Philadelphia, Pa.
NEW BOARDING HOUSE—Respectable persons can be accommodated with genteel transient or permanent boarding by applying to the subscriber, No. 374 South street, below Fifth, Philadelphia.
THEODORE PARKER'S WORKS.—Just received and for sale at the Publication Office, Philadelphia.
PARKER'S ADDRESSES. 1 vol.
PARKER'S DISCOURSE OF RELIGION. 1 vol.
Also, Parker's Sermons, and exposure of Parker, Phillips, Sumner and William Lloyd Garrison.
FRANKLIN WOOD, 104 South Fourth street, below Walnut, Philadelphia.
DEALER IN WOOD OF EVERY KIND IN ALL ITS BRANCHES.
Real Estate bought and sold. Money procured or invested on mortgage. Ground-rents bought and sold on commission. Houses rented, Rents collected, &c. &c.
Deeds, Marriage Certificates, Friends' ceremony drawn, and executed correctly.
CARRIAGE REPOSITORY.—The subscriber informs the public that he has opened his new Carriage Repository, No. 156 Race street, above Eighth, where he intends to keep an assortment of new and second hand Carriages for sale at reasonable prices. Carriages made to order on moderate terms. Carriages sold on commission. Carriages taken in exchange. Repairing done in the best manner.
JOHN MCKINNEY.
CHARLES C. JACKSON, Tailor, 201 Arch street, below 2d Sixth street, Philadelphia, would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has just returned from New York with a constant assortment of Cloths and Trimmings, of the latest quality, will be kept ready to make up to order in the best manner, and at the most reasonable prices.
SUMMER DRY GOODS.—Dress Goods at reduced prices, to close them; Barege Robes; Silk Grenadines; Figured and Plain Lawns; Linen Goods; Hosiery and Gloves; Irish Linen Quilts; Curtain Materials; Embroidered Collars and Sleeves; Silks; best makes of Cotton Shirtings and Sheetings; Gran Cotton Wicks and narrow Cotton Shirtings.
SHARPLESS BROTHERS, 32 South Second street.
PRIZE MEDAL awarded in London, in 1851, for the superiority over all others in the manufacture of Travelling Trunks, Valises, Portmanteaus, Ladies' Dressing Bags, Reticules, and sole leather, steel spring, iron frame, iron-bound Trunks of all descriptions. Also, Patent Metallic Fire and Burglar-proof Safes, Depositories, Black Leather Enamelled Bags, at the lowest prices.
HENRY TAYLOR, Manufacturer,
130 Market street, S. W. cor. 4th, Philadelphia.
PHRENOLOGICAL CABINET.—Fowlers, Wells & Co., Phrenologists and Publishers, 231 Arch street, below Seventh, Philadelphia, have always on hand a full supply of Phrenological Busts, Diagrams, Physiology, Hygiene, Magnetism and Phonography, wholesale and retail. Also, at 308 Broadway, New York.
Professional examinations, with charts, and full written instructions of character, day and evening. Cabinet free.
CONFECTIONERY.—Lestitia Bullock, No. 88 N. Second street, above Race, respectfully informs her friends and the public that she is prepared to furnish parties, balls, &c., with Ice Cream, Ices, Cordials, &c., of every description and of the very best materials in the market, at the shortest notice. Confectionery sent to families.
☞ Parties and families furnished at short notice. Orders attended to.
KENDERDINE & JUSTICE, Importers and Dealers in Foreign and Domestic HARDWARE, S. W. corner Sixth and Seventh streets, Phila. Constantly on hand a great assortment of Hardware, Cutlery, Guns, &c., for sale at the lowest wholesale or retail. Particular attention paid to furnishing Hardware for Steamboats.
JOSEPH S. KENDERDINE, } WARNER JUSTICE.
PHRENOLOGY.—Removal.—William B. Ellett's Institute and Museum is now at the spacious (Siene) building 559 Arch street, above 6th, where he will be pleased to see his friends and the public. Lectures, Examinations, Publications, Busts, &c., as heretofore. Phrenological Books and Busts, Stationery for sale. Open every evening. Lectures on Phrenology, Physiology, Temperance, Moral Science, &c., delivered in various parts of the country. Terms liberal. Call or write.
A LARGE assortment of SALAMANDER SAFES of various sizes, always on hand, at the Depot, 105 Walnut street, Philadelphia. Warranted equal to any made in the United States. Also, Locks, Bolts, Powder Proof Doors, &c., manufactured and for sale. Constant use of the same. Please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. Also, Iron Safes, Refrigerators, Water Filters, &c. A large assortment always on hand.
H. SIDE, Sole Agency for Butterworth's celebrated Rust Proof Door Locks. Fire and Burglar-proof Safes, Bank Locks, &c.
ROBERT R. CORSON & CO., successors to BACON PRICE & CO., have taken the Office recently occupied by the late firm, No. 19 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, and are prepared to deliver Lehigh, Schuylkill and Locust Mountain Coal, of the best quality. Their knowledge of the Coal business, acquired by a residence of many years in the region of the Schuylkill Mines, in connection of one of them with B. P. & Co., in their wholesale business, for the last seven years, enables them to say, with confidence, that they will sell no better terms than those of the trade who are not connected with the mines of the business.
Orders respectfully solicited.
ROBERT L. CORSON,
CHARLES L. RIGGS.
Office, 83 South Fourth street, and Broad above Spruce streets, Philadelphia.
Equality to all! Uniformity of Prices! A new feature in Business!
JONES & Co., of the Crescent One Price Clothing Store, No. 200 Market street, above 6th, in addition to having the largest, cheapest and best selected stock of Clothing ever before made expressly for retail sales, have constituted every one their agent, for by strictly adhering to figures, on each article of the lowest price it can be sold for, no one need possibly vary in their purchases. The goods are all well sponged and pressed, great pains taken in matching, and the whole system is such as to assurance of getting a good article at the very lowest price.
Remember the CRESCENT, in Market, above 6th, N. W. side.
JONES & Co.
TO COUNTRY STOREKEEPERS.—The subscriber has now in store a full assortment of his own manufacture, a large assortment of Misses' and Children's Hats, Bonnets, Flats, RIBBONS and GAITERS, of the best workmanship and materials, which he will sell at as low a price as any other house in the city. Merchants can get any piece to make up assortments without having to purchase a whole case. Also, a considerable assortment of FANCY GOODS.
No. 21 North Second street, below Race, Philadelphia.
N. B. Gaiter Uppers, ready for the last, sold to Country Shoemakers at low prices.